Mystery Letter From New Castle In Murder Case

Hollywood Shooting Victim Has Letter From Woman In New Castle

NAME IS GUARDED BY COAST POLICE

New Castle Police Await Request For Investigation In This City

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD, July 1. A "Dear Daddy" letter from a mysterious woman in Pennsylvania and a secret postoffice lock box today entered investigation of the baffling Hollywood murder of King D. Gray, 53, motion picture cameraman.

Detectives hoped these slender clues would provide a key to the puzzle, as they questioned one person and sought another.

They also checked the last activities of Gray, before he was found shot to death yesterday in the heart of Hollywood.

Police would not disclose the identity of the sender of the letter, nor its contents. It began "Dear Daddy," and was found on Gray's person.

Detectives admitted, however, that they had queried New Castle, Pa., police in an effort to learn more about the sender of the letter. The writer lives in New Castle, according to local officers.

Baffling Crime

Circumstances of the baffling crime were:

The murder gun was missing, although an empty shell lay in Gray's car.

There were no powder burns on the victim's clothing, although it was believed he was shot while in the car.

There was no robbery motive, as considerable money and expensive jewelry were untouched.

The body was in Gray's auto

PA NEWC OBSERVES

Experiments recently conducted by Irving Langmuir, of the General Electric Research laboratories to determine the speed of flying insects, of which the deer botfly is supposed to be the kingpin with a speed of 800 miles per hour, revealed that 25 miles an hour is the probable speed of the insect. A lump of solder of approximately the same size and dimensions as the botfly was suspended on a silk thread and swung at various velocities in a white-ceilinged brightly lighted room. At 64 miles an hour, the object became invisible, Pennsylvania Game News relates.

Searchers Locate Body Of Medill McCormick After Hunt In Mountains

(International News Service)

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., July 1.—Mountaineers crawled along the rugged face of Sandia Peak today to recover the body of Medill McCormick, scion of a wealthy publishing family.

Lost for more than a week after starting out to scale the mountain, the body of the 21-year-old youth was found late yesterday by a searching party of Indians.

Spot Inaccessible

The spot, however, was so inaccessible that forestry officials said it would probably be late today before the body could be recovered.

The Indians reported finding the body on almost the opposite side of the solitary mountain from that at which the body of Richard Whitmer, McCormick's compation on the climb, had been discovered Friday.

It was theorized that both young men had fallen at the same time but that McCormick had been less severely injured than his friend and started out for help, only to collapse. Another possibility was that Whitmer had fallen alone and McCormick plunged to his death while taking a circuitous route to reach the body.

While positive identification could not be made until the body was returned here, Regional Forester Frank W. Pooler said identification

State Leaders Dismayed At Supreme Court Decrees Hitting "Little New Deal"

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, July 1.—State leaders today contemplated with anger and dismay two state supreme court rulings which blasted into ruins key "New Deal" legislation of the Earle administration, the 44-hour law and the oil industry investigation.

The 44-hour work-week law, shortening the working hours of approximately 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 male workers, was considered the shining achievement of Gov. George H. Earle's "little New Deal" administration. Passed by the last session of the legislature, the law was expected to create 75,000 new jobs.

Through the investigation into the oil industry the administration had hoped to bring this key Pennsylvania industry under state control, much in the manner of that exercised by the Public Utility Commission over utility corporations.

Of Double Significance.

The supreme court's decision outlawing the oil investigation had a double significance, legislative leaders were quick to point out, for it sharply limited the power of the state legislature to act by resolution in addition to the more formal method of duly enacted statutes.

The high court ruled the 44-hour law was invalid because it delegated legislative power illegally and held the joint resolution of last year setting up the oil investigating commission of no effect because the legislature did not follow the correct procedure.

Administration officials, on the whole, refused to comment on the supreme court's rulings. Although adverse criticism from supreme court justices during argument on the law had left the impression the law might not be upheld, adminis-

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The tremendous cost of Japan's war on China has forced that nation to halt construction of three new 46,000-ton super-battleships, according to information reaching high official circles.

For this reason, International News Service learned today, President Roosevelt has decided not, at this time, to launch the United States on a program of matching these super-dreadnaughts.

Thus the reason for the launching of the greatest world-wide naval armaments race ever known had temporarily disappeared today just at the moment the United States, Great Britain and France signed a new agreement scrapping the 35,000-ton limitation that has been in effect on capital ships since the Washington disarmament conference in 1922.

Invoked Escape Clause.

The United States, on April 1, because of reports that Japan was exceeding the 35,000-ton limitation and building the largest battleships ever to ride the waves, invoked the escape clause in the London naval treaty of 1936 which held the three democracies to the limitation. It became effective with the signing of a protocol between the three countries yesterday fixing the new limitation at 45,000 tons and its armament 16-inch guns. Nothing

By J. WILLIAM THEIS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 1.—Three score and 15 years ago, this day brought Gettysburg the beginning of a bloody war's end as today it marked the beginning of another end for 2,000 Civil War veterans—their "last reunion."

Chance brought the rattle of musketry and the clash of sabre into Gettysburg streets on July 1, 1863. But today, the 75th anniversary of the first day of fighting, peacetime preparations by state and federal commissions culminated in "Reunion Day," opening a commemorative week-end for the Blue and Gray.

Governor Is Guest

Gov. George H. Earle, Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring, and the G. A. R. and United Confederate Veterans' commanders-in-chief headlined the day's formal program in Gettysburg College stadium.

Secretary Woodring was met at the Maryland-Pennsylvania state line by an escort of state motor police and troopers. Six army tanks led his parade entrance to Gettysburg.

Across this college campus where 75 years ago Ewell's Confederate Second Corps drove disordered Union troops, modern army field pieces banged out salutes for the arriving dignitaries. Nearby the "two cities" of tents—Union and Confederate—hummed with the banter of aged buddies.

Memories that three-quarters of a century have dulled but little, turned out talk upon tale on how the July 1 conflict surged from Oak Ridge through the town to Cemetery Hill.

Contracts Let For Airplanes For U. S. Army

U. S. Makes Bid For Air Supremacy, With Expenditure Of $14,435,196

BOMBING PLANES WILL BE BUILT

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, July 1.—America today made a bold bid for world supremacy in the air.

The largest contract for fighting airplanes in history totalling $14,435,196 was announced by the war department for purchase of long range bombers.

The huge purchase calls for 98 of the latest and most formidable fighting craft in the world. Thirteen of these craft will be huge four-engined Boeing bombers. This purchase will give the army air corps a total of 52 of these huge bombers which are believed to be the most effective bombardment aircraft in the world, both from the standpoint of long range bombing ability and defensive fighting effectiveness. This phenomenal plane will attain speeds considerably in excess of 250 miles per hour and has a range with full load of over 3,000 miles.

To Build Bombers

The four motored bombers will be built by the Boeing Aircraft company, of Seattle, which originally designed this plane in conjunction with army air corps experts. The planes will cost $3,174,802.

Six of these ships this winter made a flight from Langley Field, Va., to Buenos Aires and return, covering approximately 6,000 miles in a total elapsed flying time of 34 hours and 25 minutes.

The fortress is armed with five heavy machine guns, carries a crew of nine, and can outspeed most present day pursuit aircraft.

The second and largest of the contracts is for 78 B-18A two-engined bombardment planes costing $5,703,287. These ships will be built by the Douglas Aircraft company of Santa

Judge Schaeffer To Give Decision On State Probe

SHELLEY'S EVIDENCE IS KEPT SECRET

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, July 1.—Two sets of evidence—one prepared by Republican District Attorney Carl B. Shelley and the other by Attorney General Guy K. Bard—today held the key to whether there would be a grand jury investigation into the Earle administration.

Locking himself in his chambers, Judge Paul N. Schaeffer, upon whom rests the final decision, studied the conflicting evidence carefully as he prepared for the ruling which was expected to decide once and for all whether the probe would continue.

Rules Against Bard

Although the Berks County jurist had granted Bard permission to view Shelley's evidence he later changed his mind and after hearing Bard argue the point in court ruled against him. The jurist would first see Shelley's evidence, he said, and then Bard's. The attorney general's evidence, it was explained, was gathered by the state police.

Shelley's evidence was presented to Judge Schaeffer at 2:30 p. m. yesterday. Then followed Bard's request that he be permitted to view it, following which he argued the point in open court and was overruled.

Following the court decision Judge Schaeffer locked himself in with Shelley and his assistants and they pored over the evidence for an hour or more then adjourned until this morning. Later today, perhaps, Judge Schaeffer will view Bard's evidence. Following that he will hand down his formal decision con-

HONG KONG, July 1.—In one of the most horrible bombings of the year-old war, a large Japanese flying force tonight killed hundreds of civilians in the south China Port of Swatow.

The Japanese flew at such a great height that accurate aim was impossible, and their deadly missiles burst haphazardly in the crowded streets of central Swatow.

For two hours the bombers wheeled overhead, driving the 180,000 inhabitants of the port wild with terror as explosion after explosion shook the city.

Hundreds more were wounded, and wide areas were wrecked.

LONDON, July 1.—Pale, grim-faced and with twitching fingers, Count Court Haugwitz-Reventlow came to London today and assured a Bow street police court magistrate that he never intended bodily harm to his wife, the former Barbara Hutton, American-born Woolworth heiress.

In a brief hearing on charges brought against him by the countess, the Danish nobleman was granted bail of 1,000 pounds ($5,000) on his own surety and two other sureties of 500 pounds ($2,500) each.

As a concession, however, the court decided the count could find one outside surety of 1,000 pounds instead of two of 500 pounds each if he so desired.

May Start Three More Dams

Two Flood Dams Now Under Way

Mahoning, Red Bank And Cambridge Springs Dams Next In Line

FUNDS FOR START BELIEVED AVAILABLE

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 1.—Work on three more of the proposed series of nine reservoirs to protect Pittsburgh and other river communities from disastrous floods will be started within the next 12 months, it was learned today.

Two dams—Crooked Creek and Tionesta—already have been started. They will be completed in about two years. Meantime United States army engineers here expect to launch work on three more—Mahoning creek, Red Bank and Cambridge Springs—before the present fiscal year, which starts today, is out.

Money For Start

Sufficient money to get the projects underway is available at this time and work on the reservoirs will be inaugurated as soon as final designs are completed, according to Col. W. E. R. Covell, district head of the engineers in charge of flood control work.

When the network of dams is completed, the crest of future flood waters will be reduced 10 feet at the "Point" here where the Monongahela and Allegheny converge to form the Ohio. If the dams would have been completed prior to the St. Patrick's day flood of 1936 the crest—with 10 feet lopped off its 47-foot top—would not have caused near the damage it did, according to Col. Covell.

Designs for the Mahoning creek and Red Bank projects are nearly complete, Col. Covell said he had $1,350,000 available for the Mahoning dam and $400,000 ready to begin operations on the Red Bank reservoir. Plans for the Cambridge Springs' dam on French creek are not yet in final stages but $400,000 is at hand to pay the first bills when the go ahead signal is given.

Yesterday, Col. Covell, Mayor Cornelius D. Scully of Pittsburgh and several city councilmen discussed the pros and cons of projected flood control measures while enjoying a brief outing on the yacht "Swanee" on the Allegheny river. Members of the party travelled up to Lock 4, above Tarentum.

Chief talk of the conferees concerned the proposed flood control wall which would circle the Golden Triangle for a distance of about two miles protecting downtown Pittsburgh's heavy business district against floods to a height of 46 feet.

Some time also was spent on ways and means of expediting work on the nine reservoirs planned for the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers.

Placed east to west across the United States, Chile would reach from New York to San Francisco.

FEDERAL BUREAUS HAVE HUGE FUND TO AID PROSPERITY

to the river and harbors sections of the War department for flood control. Separate bills for CCC, REA and farm security added almost another billion dollars to the recovery funds.

The administration's "first line of recovery," PWA and WPA, are already underway with programs of public works and work-relief. The U. S. Housing Authority started its section of the recovery drive last January. Today the other four bureaus patch into the drive with 100 per cent support as they delve into new bond funds.

Out of its funds of $1,365,000,000, PWA has already earmarked $400,528,668 for 2,586 public works projects throughout the country.

Involving total construction costs of $627,620,130, these PWA projects will ease local unemployment and at the same time create employment in the heavy industries through orders for materials. Transportation of these materials will also create and save many jobs.

Huge WPA Fund

WPA today turned to its new $1,425,000,000 fund, of which $25,000,000 is to be held aside for direct relief at the discretion of the president. With 2,735,247 persons now on its rolls, WPA expects to shortly reach a total of 3,000,000. Its new program, the cost of which has been greatly increased by higher wages in many states, ends February 28, 1939, by which time the 76th Congress is expected to have appropriated other funds to carry WPA through June 30, 1939.

The U. S. Housing Authority was given $500,000,000 with its creation by congress and then received another $300,000,000 through the recovery bill. Of this $800,000,000, the authority has already earmarked $353,374,000 for 96 cities in 23 states for slum-clearance and will shortly announce earmarkings of $65,000,000 for another 25 cities. Of its earmarkings, $111,070,000 are covered by construction contracts to 17 cities and shortly another $50,000,000 will be given out for low-cost housing in 12 contracts.

AAA Gets Big Sum

With PWA, housing construction and work-relief caring for local unemployment, volunteer men of the nation out of jobs are welcomed into the CCC, for which congress first appropriated $220,000,000 and then $50,000,000 in a deficiency bill. A total of 1,501 camps will be operated during the fiscal year with maximum enrollment of 300,000. More than 79,500 new applicants will be accepted this month.

For the rural and farming sections, REA, farm security and AAA prepared beneficial programs. Given $100,000,000 for the year, REA added to it the $40,000,000 it was awarded in the independent offices act and prepared to spend every dime giving rural electrical cooperatives financing backing so all rural sections may have electricity.

AAA received $212,000,000 for parity payments to farmers when market prices of crops fall to poor levels. This fund will be divided approximately among the following crops: Cotton, $86,000,000; corn, $68,000,000; wheat, $53,000,000; rice and tobacco, $1,666,000. Parity payments are given for crops held in storage to prevent flood markets.

Of farm security's $175,000,000 fund, about $57,000,000 has already started pouring through the federal spending spigots and will be spent by January 1. The other two-thirds of the fund will be expended in the spring when farmers need aid for planting and remodeling. FSA's fund must be used as follows: $123,000,000 for rehabilitation; $30,000,000 for destitute farmers (direct relief); $35,000,000 for administration. Its total is derived from a $150,000,000 appropriation and $25,000,000 from the farm tenancy act.

JUDGE SCHAEFFER TO GIVE DECISION ON STATE PROBE

vening a grand jury or ruling finally there is no need for an investigation into the multiple charges of graft and corruption levelled against Gov. George H. Earle and 13 Democratic state officials and leaders.

Claims Conflict

Shelley says his evidence will prove to Judge Schaeffer there is a need for a grand jury investigation. Baird says his evidence will show "instance for instance" where Shelley's charges can not be supported by credible evidence, the requirement that must be met if the probe is to be ordered.

Said Judge Schaeffer:

"I want to hear what Mr. Shelley has to say and then I want to hear what Mr. Bard has to say. On those two independent presentations I will make my opinion on whether the grand jury is to proceed."

Rapidly moving events, many confusing, brought the long-drawn out case to the final decision stage.

First Shelley telephoned Judge Schaeffer at his Reading home informing him he was ready to present his evidence. Upon arriving in Harrisburg Judge Schaeffer immediately locked himself up in chambers with Shelley and his aides who arrived with bulging brief cases.

Refused Look At Evidence

Bard however, was still in his office at the Capitol unaware of what was going on. Informed by a newspaper reporter, he dashed to Judge Schaeffer's office, was admitted, but was refused permission to view the evidence. While this was going on Public Utility Commissioner Richard J. Beamish, appointed by Governor George H. Earle to act as his personal representative, cooled his heels in the hall, unable to gain admittance.

Then followed the court session. Bard presented a motion asking the court for permission to view the evidence. He pointed to Judge Schaeffer's ruling last Monday in which the jurist said.

"... We do not undertake to decide that the attorney general may not participate in these proceedings. He is the attorney general and as such is entitled to be heard."

But Judge Schaeffer, after hearing Assistant District Attorney Samuel Handler argue Shelley's case, ruled:

"I feel it is my duty to instruct the district attorney to proceed with laying his evidence before me privately at this time. I shall give the attorney general the opportunity to meet me in chambers in the same way." And thus the matter finally rested.

even approaching this size of warships has ever been built with the exception of Britain's 42,000-ton Hood.

The United States, against British and French opposition, insisted that the limitation be lifted to 45,000 tons and compromised on 16-inch guns, although plans were being considered for 18-inch weapons.

"When it is decided to build larger capital ships, these limits are, from a technical point of view, believed most nearly to correspond with the naval defense needs of the United States," the state department explained.

Not Abandoned.

President Roosevelt's decision not to begin immediate building of 45,000-ton super-battleships does not, International News Service was informed, in any wise mean that their construction has been abandoned. It has simply been found that the press of necessity has been, for the time being, removed by Japan's economic plight.

Te 45,000-tonners—three of them—mounting twelve 16-inch guns, the greatest array of armament ever placed on a battleship, probably will be built beginning next year, but always with the possibility that conditions may make it advisable to change the four new 35,000-tonners to the large categories.

And this is entirely possible, for such discretion is entirely in the hands of the president. The president's last word on battleship construction plans was announced last week-end by Admiral William S. Leahy, chief of naval operations after the agreement on escalation was reached with Great Britain and France. This was done despite the fact that Britain is going ahead with two 40,000-ton battleships this year.

The navy stated flatly today that bids will be advertised for America's four new battleships on July 15 with the specifications calling for 35,000-ton ships.

COUNT DENIES CHARGES MADE

hearing was adjourned until next Tuesday.

The count gave verbal assurance that he would not communicate with the countess during the period of his remand.

This was the only time he spoke during the entire hearing. The few words were uttered in a low voice.

Otherwise he stood silent and glum in the dock, his gray suit, blue polka-dot tie and brown suede shoes in strange contrast to the grim line of his jaw.

Assurance that the nobleman never intended bodily harm to his wife was made through his attorney Norman Birkett.

Before his own case was called, the count sat in the well of the court room while the inquiries bound over two street corner boys for fighting.

OPEN THREE-LANE HIGHWAY TODAY

has been completed except for the removal of the contracting equipment and the final "cleaning up" of the road.

Dangerous Curve Eliminated

At Parkstown Corners, heretofore a treacherous curve in the road, most of the danger has been removed. The main curve has been lengthened thus taking away its sharpness and a great deal of the danger.

A fine job has been accomplished along this highway, three lanes of concrete are now in place. The entire road is covered with a thin coating of surfacing, to make it even and smooth. The work on Route 422 was completed ahead of the scheduled time, due largely to the fine weather prevailing during most of the construction period.

The Sampson street road to The Harbor, which was used as a detour, has gotten into bad shape because of the heavy traffic which passed over it, and Highway Department officials indicated today that steps would be taken to repair it and put it in first class condition in the near future.

which was parked in front of the Hollywood postoffice, but, while detectives estimated he had been dead for 10 to 15 hours, the car had been parked there only a few hours.

Detectives have theorized that Gray may have been shot and brought to the postoffice, or that he was trying to drive to a nearby hospital and died in front of the postoffice.

Gray, married and 52 years old, who was found Thursday afternoon shot to death in his auto, in front of a Hollywood post-office.

The letter was addressed as "Dear Daddy" to Gray. Hollywood police refused to give the signature to newspaper reporters.

The telephonic communications received here through newspaper channels did not cite any reason for the homicide, neither did they give an inkling as to who shot Gray, who formerly was the head cameraman for a motion picture studio.

SEARCHERS FIND BODY OF MEDILL M'CORMICK

marks reported by the Indians established it as that of young McCormick beyond any doubt.

Mother Reconciled To Facts

Mrs. Ruth Hanna Simms, the youth's mother, was said to be reconciled to the fact that it is the body of her son. He was her child by her first marriage to the late Senator Medill McCormick. A former Illinois congresswoman, she is now the wife of Albert Simms, Albuquerque attorney.

Whitmore, a 20-year-old Princeton student, had been a schoolmate of McCormick in Denver and was a guest at the Simms ranch on the outskirts of Albuquerque, 70 miles from Sandia Mountain. Both were inveterate mountain climbers and had undertaken far more hazardous attempts in the past.

It was believed, however, they had been caught in a sudden rainstorm and lost their footing on the slippery bare rock slopes.

Gov. Clyde Tingley, of New Mexico, took personal charge in directing the hunt for the two and engaged the help of 400 CCC workers, Indians and forestry rangers.

NOTIFIED OF ACCIDENT

Test New Plane In Artificial Ocean Weather

(International News Service)

AKRON, O.—"North Atlantic weather" made by machine in the world's largest refrigerated wind tunnel, gave a complete scale model of the giant 41-ton, 74-passenger, four-motored Boeing transport plane its first tests here.

Engineers of Pan-American Airways, for whom the huge craft was built, the Boeing aircraft company, and the N. F. Glenn & company, in whose wind tunnel the tests were conducted, made the observations with the model as a climax to years of research and study.

The big ship, which Pan-American hopes to speed with mail and passengers across the Atlantic next year, was built at Boeing's Seattle plant and will be placed in service by the shortest route by way of Puerto Rico.

It is one of six ships now on order for Pan-American.

BRAHMS CHORUS HAS DINNER PARTY

Last evening the Brahms Ladies Chorus, one of the city's talented musical organizations, celebrated the close of its first season with a dinner party at a nearby roadside inn. The winter and fall seasons for these singers were busy ones, with rehearsals and concerts scheduled for practically every week. Thursday night was the climax, and the culmination of activities until September.

Close to thirty attended the party, including the director, David V. Rees, the manager, Mrs. Rowland Roberts, the accompanist, Mrs. John M. Evans, and a few other guests. Dinner was served at four tables, which had been arranged in a pretty fashion. Bright favors were found at each place; the place cards caused considerable merriment for the names were printed backwards or were otherwise scrambled and a merry mix-up ensued.

Pep singing was enjoyed after dessert, and then a program of games which brought peals of laughter from everyone. It was a lovely party, a fitting end to a very successful musical season and a great deal of credit goes to the following committee-of-arrangements: Mrs. Leon Williams, Mrs. Griff Lewis, Mrs. Roland Peden, Mrs. Annie Jamison, Miss Josephine Jenkins and Miss Sarah Nitchie.

The chorus is planning another series of concerts in the fall and expects to add a great number of Brahms selections to the repertoire. The Brahms music is well adapted for use by women's choruses and these selections sung by the local organization this past year were enthusiastically received.

Mahoning M. E. Church Scene Of Lovely "All White" Wedding

Simplicity marked the "all white" church wedding Thursday evening of Miss Isabelle Shaw, daughter of the late William Shaw and Mrs. Mary Shaw, 407 West Cherry street, and Paul G. Shaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Shaw of Volant, the ceremony taking place in the Mahoning M. E. church at 6:30 o'clock.

Before a throng of guests numbering several hundred, the vows were exchanged, with Rev. C. H. Hagadorn, pastor, officiating with the impressive double ring service.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Russell Shaw, was attired in a floor length marquisette gown trimmed in lace. The sleeves were short and puffed and her shoulder length veil matched her gown. Lace mitts to the elbow and other accessories were carried out in white. Her only ornament was a white gold locket, a treasured gift from her late father and her mother when she was 18. She carried an arm bouquet of white roses and valley lilies, with white streamers attached, knotted with bits of valley lilies.

Attending her sister as matron of honor, Mrs. William Maloney and Mrs. Hilbert Reynolds as bridesmaid, were gowned in white mousseline de soie, made identical, and similar to that worn by the bride. The toe length skirts were edged in rows of pink ribbon, and their slippers and crocheted Juliet caps in matching pink, gave a lovely contrast. Each carried an arm bouquet of pink roses.

Wendell Shaw of Volant served his brother as best man. Another brother, Harold Shaw, and Manning Weller, both of this city, ushered.

The church altar was beautifully decorated with palms and ferns, providing a solid green background for the many bouquets, and tall standards of pink and white flowers. White cathedral candles in branching candelabrum completed the setting.

Contributing further to the impressiveness of the occasion, nuptial music was provided by Guy Davis, organist. Preceding the ceremony, however, he played a half-hour program, Mrs. Wendell McClurg as soloist sang "At Dawning" for her first selection, and "O Promise Me" for her second. Mr. Davis also played during the ceremony.

A congratulatory period followed, and later a wedding reception and the serving of a buffet supper took place in the home of the bride's parents for the immediate families, the bridal party and a few friends, numbering 50. The house was decorated in an abundance of flowers, and the bridal table was distinctive in appointments of pink and white. The large tiered cake, surmounted with miniature figures, adorned the center.

Mrs. Mary Shaw wore for her daughter's wedding a Windsor blue lace gown with white accompaniments, and the groom's mother, Mrs. John B. Shaw, was attired in a dusky rose lace creation with accompaniments in white. Both wore shoulder corsages of gardenias.

The newlyweds left later in the evening on a motor trip to Canada, the New England states and other points of interest. Upon their return they will take up residence in their newly furnished home at Volant, where they will be "at home" to friends after July 8. For traveling Mrs. Shaw was becoming in a dusky rose cape ensemble with Parisand accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of white roses.

The bride is a graduate of senior high school of this city with the class of '32. She is a graduate also of New Castle Business college and has been employed with the local Prudential Life Insurance company offices. The groom is a graduate of Volant high and holds a position with the State Highway of Beaver county as an inspector.

In an upstairs room of the bride's home was displayed a magnificent collection of shower and wedding gifts. She has been feted at a series of parties since the news of their engagement was announced.

On Wednesday evening the rehearsal dinner was held in the bride's mother's home for the wedding party, with her sister, Mrs. William Maloney, presiding as hostess. She was aided by Mrs. William Shaw and Mrs. Ben Harlan in serving.

Aides at the wedding included Mrs. John Thomas, Mrs. Herman Alexander and Mrs. Ben Harlan. Those who served were Mary Emma McLafferty, Helen Maher, Dorothy Cummings, Helen Fisco and Myrtle Conn.

Guests were present from Worcester, O., Rural Valley, Harrisburg, Erie, Volant, Youngstown, O., Beaver Falls, Struthers, O., New Wilmington and surrounding vicinities.

BIBLES IN WARTIME

SALES of the Bible have been phenomenal in one part of the globe this year.

A report from the British and Foreign Bible Society singles out the situation for special mention. It seems that there has never been such a demand during a comparable period.

"In the last quarter of our current fiscal year," a spokesman states, "we sold 2,000 Bibles. . . . The total of Bibles, Gospels and separate books of the Scriptures we sold in this period was approximately 9,200."

The spokesman goes on to state that the sales figures would have been much larger if the salesmen hadn't encountered certain difficulties in getting about. Difficulties like bombed railroad stations and shelled bridges.

The sales report refers to Spain, where men are busy blasting one another off the face of the earth.

JAPAN HEADS FOR TRAGEDY

Within a few days Japan's Supreme War Council will meet to consider anew the destinies of the Empire. This meeting will be an extraordinary session. The Supreme War Council assembles only on rare occasions in time of great national crisis, when there is real and pressing peril and momentous decisions must be made. There have been only five such meetings in the modern history of Japan and only one during the last year, notwithstanding that the nation is deeply involved in rumors war whose tide has not turned in accordance with anticipations.

In a sense, Japan has been victorious in China. Its troops have gained important military successes and have taken great stretches of territory, thinly and precariously held, but have not succeeded, in so far as can be determined, in bringing the war appreciably closer to its end. China has given no sign of being beaten. There is no suggestion of yielding. At frequent intervals the giant sums up its great reserve of power and strikes a devastating blow at the invader.

The spirit of the Chinese, contrary to all expectations, is holding up. They watch complacently the great extension of the enemy's lines, knowing all too well that with every mile of land gained there are a hundred new and difficult problems to be overcome, among them the necessity of maintaining garrisons at strategic locations when men are so seriously needed in the field of active operations. Meanwhile the Yellow River, in an unruly moment has aided the cause of the defenders by deforming for a month or more the planned drive for the capture of Hankow.

The outcome is hardly predictable. It seems apparent, however, that the confusion of Japanese responsibility is being dispelled and that Japan, engaged in an enterprise of proportions never anticipated, is making swift progress toward overwhelming tragedy.

VOTES AND TAXES

The President apparently was thinking out loud rather than making a serious proposal, when he remarked at a recent press conference that it might be a good idea to have the citizens pay their taxes on election day.

Whether such a stunt would be at all popular is an open question. Election day seems to be tough enough as it is; at any rate, about half of us can't even take the trouble to go to the polls. Making it tax-payment day as well would just make a tough day tougher.

And in any case the President wasn't offering a formal plan; he was just tossing out a suggestion, and the odds are that the suggestion will never be acted on. But when you stop to think about it there is a good deal to recommend it.

There are two things about which we do a lot of empty talking: democracy, and taxes.

We rhapsodize on our democracy, in season and out of season. We enjoy reading about the fake elections of the dictatorships, and we like to remind ourselves how different it all is over here—how every man has a vote which he casts according to the dictates of his own conscience, how all men are equal at the ballot box, and how we are absolute masters of our own destiny.

Then, in the next breath, we like to complain about taxes. They are too high, too numerous, too complicated. The money that goes into them is not well spent. We don't get much for our dollars: the politicians are wasteful and spend without proper forethought.

And so we go on; we brag about our voting right and lament about our taxes, and never stop to realize the direct connection there is between the two.

If we set aside one day for the exercise of both functions, we might realize, for one thing, that our citizenship is a privilege that is well worth paying for. Not many people in this modern world enjoy the freedom of the polls. The mere fact that we do have it sets us apart. We enjoy a boon denied to many millions of people; can't we pay for it with a good grace?

Second, we might also realize that the way we exercise this privilege of voting has a most immediate bearing on the way in which we are called upon to shoulder the duty of paying taxes. For these despised politicians who spend our money are after all, elected by ourselves, and they are extremely sensitive about trying to do what they think we want them to do. If they scan us through high tax rates, excessive spending programs and all the rest, it cannot possibly be anyone's fault but our own.

If we went direct from the polling booth to the tax collector's office we ought to have a much clearer idea about the privilege of the ballot and the responsibility that goes with it.—Harrisburg Evening News.

What ever became of the Presidential aspirations of Governor Earle, of Pennsylvania?

Yes, children used to respect their parents more. Kids usually respect those who deserve it.

After careful investigation, they'll learn that things cost more because Americans will take a lot without kicking.

If there should be any disposition to question young Mussolini's appraisal that "war is beautiful" a recent report from Spain that "liquid flame throwers are burning great gaps in Loyalist lines" should be studied carefully.

A recent visitor to Roger Touhy describes the one-time public enemy as being quite cheerful. Perhaps his mood can be explained by the fact that he only has about ninety-five years of an ninety-nine-year sentence to serve.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

EATING PROBLEM

"Dear Dr. Myers: I enjoy your articles so much, I should like help on this problem:

"My 27-month-old boy has not been eating his meals well for the last six months. His health is perfect; one and one-half pounds overweight for his height, which is 34½ inches. . . . At first I did not pay much attention, but it is getting . . . I do not know what to do. I had him so he fed himself, then I would have to help him finish or he would leave his milk and vegetables. I have tried putting chocolate into his milk. It worked for a while. Then I bought a little elephant pitcher so he could pour his own; still he did not care for it. Then I got a little table, so he could set his own and put his food into a glass dish with pictures underneath. That worked for a while. If I tell him stories or he has something to attract his attention, then I am able to get some down. . . .

"He is an adopted child, three and one-half months when we took him. I also have an adopted girl nine months old. Please help me."

How lovely of this mother to adopt not only one child, but two children, and now patient and kind to them she must be!

Mother Commended

On the theory, "Make attractive what you wish the child to do," this mother seems to have been consistent and deserves strong commendation for her successful efforts at avoiding scenes in respect to eating. But this theory, as applied to eating problems, gets us into trouble for, as is clearly shown in this case, the child also has had made pleasant for him what we do not want him to enjoy, namely, being entertained by excessive attention.

As many a mother knows it is easy to get into the practice of feeding the child who is able to feed himself, since it brings such good results for the present. But see what problems it builds up for the future! So also a patient mother, like our correspondent, will hit upon such schemes as telling the child stories, or divert his attention in some other manner so he won't resist having food pushed into him, all of which renders eating less attractive and such pampering more fascinating. The main job is to help the child acquire pleasure solely from the food and the eating process.

Significant that this child has a baby sister—jealousy, on account of which attention is more coveted.

Never feed a child able to feed himself. Place before him a very small portion of the most essential food, one food at a time. If he doesn't choose wholly on his own accord to eat it after several minutes, nonchalantly and without a word remove it, and end the meal. At the next mealtime proceed in like fashion. If the child holds out and eats nothing for four or five successive meals, consult your physician.

LIFE'S BEST

It didn't seem like fun back then.
The fretting and the times of dread;
The vague, perplexing wondering when
We'd ever get a bit ahead!
The wishing for the things we'd spy
We couldn't quite afford to buy.

The garden then was very small
And difficult the grass to grow;
I wonder now if you recall
Those morning glories in a row
And that first climbing rose of ours
Which lined the fence with crimson flowers?

I talked of more and better things
When home my ship should come from sea;
With gowns of silk and jeweled rings
I thought that happier you'd be;
"Some day, some day that lies ahead
Life's best we'll know!" we often said.

But here we are along the way
And looking back today it seems
That we were happier yesterday
Pursuing all our golden dreams.
And strangely we have come to see
How pleasant care can grow to be.

"Sure thing, I'll be there."

An attempt is being made in Pennsylvania to change the time of issuing automobile licenses from January 1 to April 1, because people spend all their money at Christmas and have to wait until they get the money later. "IF YOU can't boost, don't knock" is an excellent old maxim which should be called to mind more often. Women are the greatest offenders of this rule. They look at one another (some at least) analytically, too analytically, searching for faults instead of good points, especially in clothes. Only recently, in an elevator, I heard one woman say to her companion: "That's such a pretty blouse. It's a shame it has that little rip in it." I thought: "What a shame you did not omit that last sentence." Several years ago Firestone, Ford Edison and Burroughs were touring through West Virginia. A lady on their car went mad and then stopped at a little crossroads store in the Backwoods section. Mr. Ford went inside and asked the proprietor:

"What kind of a town is this and is there a church around here?"

"Why, I reckon it's the prettiest town in the state and there's a church on every corner."

"Do you happen to know if Jesus Christ has been around here lately?" asked Ford.

"Why, no, I reckon not, but I heard the word was that he was expected to be in town next week. Mr. Edison is out in my car."

"See," said the merchant.

When the lady was put in it was found that a few days would be needed, so Doctor went back to the store and asked what kind of men the merchant liked.

"Fine ones" was the reply.

"Yes, but I mean what occupation?"

He answered that Mr. Firestone is out there in his car and that I am Mr. Ford. He's fine."

"Sure" said the merchant, and let drive a long stream of tobacco juice against the wall.

While the merchant was putting on the ice, Burroughs, who had white whiskers, leaned out of the car and said "Good morning, sir."

The merchant looked up at him with a face full of grin and said: "If you're going to tell me that you are Santa Claus, I'll drown you with this wreck!"

I just came home from a long business trip, and as my wife and I were at the dinner table when the doorbell rang. ## What's What At A Glance

Return Of Prosperity Hoped For
Market Rise Viewed With Approval
No One Knows For Sure

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, July 1.—With recent advances in stock market prices New Deal political optimism, looking toward coming primaries and election day, has chirked up remarkably in Washington.

To be sure, the market has not been exclusively in the ascendant. It has had its sags. Still, it has seemed to be moderately hopeful since congress adjourned and since the campaign has started.

Just how reliable a business barometer the stock market is I haven't any idea. I doubt that the average politician has, either. For that matter, I surmise that the stock market folk are mere guessers.

WHO CAN SAY?

A few genuine economists may know what they are talking about. Although, at that parenthetically, I have heard Pete Wolf, the noted Cleveland liberal, but of a famous economic expert of the Ohio metropolis.

"If I were mayor of this city I should have that chap run out of town as an utterly unreliable fortune teller."

IT MAY BE

All the same, most of us do reckon somewhat with the stock market. If it hikes we conclude that business is getting better.

And it that is what we think, the probabilities are that the widespread tendency is upward—maybe and that there is any virtue in it, but that wood and bad times are so largely a matter of pure psychology.

Anyway, this is what politicians base their predictions on.

PARTY CLAIMS CREDIT

It rather looks as if this new improvement under a particular administration that administration's adherents expect to win at the next election.

They do not care a hoot for economic theory, want to win.

A rising stock market is might down their alley, if it continues to rise until election day.

And the market has been bullish lately. Just why we do not know. Pump-priming or what?

FUTURE?—WHO CARES?

Plenty of us, realistic, do not care as to the distant future.

We shall be dead then. What we want is prosperity now.

It may not be wise to put a premium on speculation, or to base hopes for an improvement of business on the prevalence of speculation, but that is what we are getting now from our grandfathers' mismanagement—their foolishness with transportation, and their wastefulness of our natural resources. If we can wash our present troubles onto our grandchildren, what do we care? It was done to us. Why shouldn't we do it to posterity?

BUT IT MAY BURST—

Unfortunately, we cannot be sure of postponing the evil days until we are dead.

We may slide off bad times for four or eight years and then have a "pick-up" while a lot of us oldsters will be living, then we are likely to our own present as the old saying is—and die in the mess we which we ourselves have created.

What we are doing now seems to me like boosting the market temporarily.

It it starts busted while I live I have no criticism.

To look with posterity.

What I'm afraid of is that the market will break again while I am still present.

The Great Game Of Politics

By FRANK R. KENT

(Copyright, 1938)

A Solid Black Belt?

Washington, July 1.

In the last campaign the really sensational political fact was the shift from their traditional Republican anchorage over to the New Deal Democratic harbor of something like two million negro voters in the desirable states of the North. A number of things contributed to this wholesale transition — relief money, Federal patronage, committee payroll padding and a clearly calculated, Roman carefully concealed campaign of majolery.

However, the particular agency which between June and November, 1936, devoted itself exclusively and especially to corralling the great colored vote, already swinging from White Horse tendencies never before accepted, was known as the Good Neighbor League. It was financed largely with CIO money and was directed by the Rev. Stanley High, an earnest young gentleman personally close to both the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and who, free for the task being bestowed, was free from any sort of racial prejudice. It was Mr. High who managed the great Madison Square Garden's meeting for negroes, where the colored multitudes attended a colossal painting of the Second Emancipation with Franklin D. Roosevelt standing to a height of 20 feet, his hands outstretched in benediction over a kneeling group of negroes.

It was Mr. High who got Mrs. Roosevelt to speak to the committee inspirationally and off the record" arranged for her to stay on at the committee's modest offices and commit to shake hands all around, with a gracious word for everybody and the right word for those she had been told were the "right people". It was Mr. High who, in that campaign, cut a great many other things to "corral the colored vote", which no one dreamed of doing before and a great deal of the credit for the result must go to him. Certainly to know much more about the negroes in a mass and was closer to the negro leaders individually than any other man. That was his job and he and his heart in it. Under the circumstances, when Mr. High discusses the negro vote, as he did recently in the Saturday Evening Post, his views are entitled to weight. He speaks with authority.

Among other things he states what is entirely true—that an examination of party majorities in the three Presidential elections prior to 1936 indicates that the total negro vote in a moderately close contest is really the balance of power—the difference between victory and defeat—in 17 northern states. Then, pointing out that these states have a combined electoral vote of 281 out of a possible 531, whereas the 12 states of the solid South can muster only 124, Mr. High makes a very interesting and significant observation. In short" he says a "solid Black Belt" is commonly a thing more to be desired by the Democrats than a solid South.

Those who know the facts know that Mr. High is not merely alone in this view. On the contrary it is shared by most of the really intelligent political strategists of the Roosevelt administration. More has been done and more is being done by the left wing leaders to keep the Black Belt" solid for the administration than has been done or is being done for any other block of voters in the country. Nor is Mr. High the only one who has mathematically satisfied himself that it pays better political dividends to keep the negroes sweet and solid than any other group. In brief, while of course, they will try to hold both, if the New Dealers have to choose between the solid South and the solid Black Belt, they unhesitatingly will choose the latter. Proof of that has already been given in the anti-lynching bill and in other ways.

The point which Mr. High makes very clear in his article, is that in the last campaign—and in the three separate but sympathetically linked forces worked to swing the negroes away from the Republicans and over to the Democrats to-wit, the New Deal administration, Mr. Lewis' CIO and the Communist party. As Mr. High relates, the CIO is the only labor faction which has

The headline "W. P. A. Here We Come" in a McClure (Ohio) high school paper referring to an account of the graduating class is open to deplore, by a Colorado New Deal politician because he says it makes W. P. A. a symbol of despair and defeat." It is all that and more.

It is a symbol also of New Deal incompetence, since it indicates that the relief problem after six years of doubling is as great as ever. It is a symbol of New Deal's inferiority complex, since it proves that the New Deal is afraid to face the voters on its merits and feels it must continue to buy votes with public money. It is a symbol of hypocrisy and pretense with its administrator, Harry Hopkins, always declaring the purpose to be non-political and the President assuming its made-work and park-barrel program is less humiliating to relief clients than the much less costly dole.

It is a symbol of approaching national bankruptcy through inflation. It is a symbol of broken pledges for national economy and balancing the budget. It is a symbol of job-killing taxes and of other devices which prevent honest men from earning an honest living at productive work.

Defeat and despair." The two words do not begin to depict W. P. A. symbolism.

Governor Silent.

Governor Earle, before leaving for Gettysburg, to attend the blue and the gray reunion of Civil war veterans, refused to make any comment. From sources close to him it was known, however, that he was "very angry" at the court's adverse decisions.

Secretary of Labor and Industry Ralph M. Bashore, whom the court ruled would be given dictatorial powers if the law was upheld, denounced the decision as "striking a blow at the efforts of the administration to remedy sweatshop activities in industry in Pennsylvania." Bashore, under whose department would have fallen the supervision of the act had it been held constitutional, declared that "the necessity of the legislation was amply demonstrated by various studies conducted by the department of labor and industry."

"Congress recognized the necessity for such legislation and just recently enacted a wage and hour law modelled to a great extent after our own 44-hour law and regulations of the department," Bashore added.

The ruling holding the liquor floor tax unconstitutional did not affect the administration so much since it was a Republican administration measure. Passed in 1933, it imposed a $2 tax on stocks of liquor and wine in storage up to the time of repeal. At the time the law was passed it was expected to bring in $20,000,000. The likelihood of large refunds because of the court's decision was regarded as slight due to previous arrangements made with companies paying the tax. The supreme court ruled the law lacked authority and violated the due process clause.

Three Favorable.

Holding somewhat to other the [illegible] decisions handed down [illegible] Pennsylvania were three which were favorable to the administration.

The decision upholding the housing authority acts permitting creation of housing authorities for slum clearance and low rent housing projects in connection with federal aid was expected to do much to hasten low cost housing in the state.

The court sustained the power of eminent domain given such authorities, both city or county, and the exemption from all taxes, including the school tax.

Both federal and state housing officials lauded the decision barring the imposition of school taxes on low cost housing projects as removing the greatest obstacle in their path. Commenting on it, Francis [illegible] counsel for the Philadelphia housing authority, said:

"The opinion is one of the most important handed down in the United States."

Of interest to farmers, the court also upheld the milk control acts of 1934, 1935 and 1937, giving the milk control commission to fix milk prices. The ruling affected some 70,000 farmers in western Pennsylvania.

In a ruling upholding the administration the court denied the claim of Michael Edelman, a Philadelphia attorney, for a $4,000,000 fee as an informer against $16,000,000 worth of unclaimed corporation funds.

The high court adjourned until September 27, when it is scheduled to reconvene in Pittsburgh.

North Carolina Executes Three

One Dies In Electric Chair—Other Two In Lethal Chamber

(International News Service)

RALEIGH, N. C., July 1—Three North Carolina convicts paid with their lives today for their crimes—one of them dying in the electric chair while the other two went to their deaths in the state's lethal gas chamber.

Wash Turner and Bill Payne, partners in crime for many years and the state's most notorious bad men of recent times, died in the gas chamber for the murder of George Penn, a state highway patrolman, during a chase near Asheville last summer.

A few minutes before their execution, Wiley Brice, Negro, died in the electric chair. Brice, convicted of the murder of a barber in Alamance county several years ago, was condemned to death in the electric chair before the gas chamber was made the legal form of execution in this state.

It is estimated that only one out of every million oyster eggs hatches and lives to be five years old.

The Great Game Of Politics

let the bars down completely to the negroes, and the Communist party is the only party where complete social as well as political equality between whites and negroes is practiced as well as preached. As the New Deal had—and has the support of both the CIO unions and the Communists who are pretty well mixed together anyhow, the Good Neighbor League, backed by Mr. Farley and the relief organizations, had a favorable "setup" for its effort to solidify the negroes for the President. They were already headed in that direction.

It is the opinion of Mr. High, who is not now nearly as close to the White House as once he was, that the negroes in these 17 states still retain their solidarity, but have, in addition, acquired mobility. Despite the extraordinary degree to which they are permeated by the Communists, who bore from within in every negro movement, it will not do, he thinks, to count upon them as a fixed political asset. Having shifted in mass once, they may again. All of which should provide food for reflection both in the South and outside.

CONTRACTS LET FOR AIRPLANES FOR U. S. ARMY

Monica, Cal., and will give the air corps more than 250 of this type of medium bombers.

The war department stated that the original contract, with the new purchase of the B-18A's is "by far the largest contract for airplanes ever placed by the army in times of peace."

New Attack Ship

The third contract calls for purchase of seven revolutionary type attack planes. The contract is for $297,180 and was awarded to the Vultee Aircraft division of the Aviation Manufacturing corporation, Downey, Calif.

This attack ship is known as the YA-19 and is an all-metal, low-wing monoplane, powered by a single Pratt-Whitney 14-cylinder engine. It carries a crew of three, can attain a speed of more than 230 miles an hour and will carry 600 pounds of small bombs for strafing of ground troops, air bases and supply columns, and is armed with six machine guns, four of which are fixed and fire forward and two of which are flexible and fire to the rear.

Are Fast Planes

The war department stated the YA-19 is the largest and fastest single-engine attack plane known to be possessed by any nation.

Four large engine contracts totaling $2,573,286 for 276 aircraft engines were placed at the same time with the Wright Aeronautical corporation, Paterson, N. J., the Allison Engineering company of Indianapolis and the Pratt and Whitney division of United Aircraft corporation at Hartford.

Twenty-six other contracts covered purchase of various types of airplane equipment.

Today's huge contracts complete expenditure for new equipment of the 1938 appropriations and bring to a total of 588 the number of war planes purchased by the army during the year.

HONORS VIRGINIA

LONDON.—In memory of her childhood home, Lady Nancy Astor, American-born first woman member of the English House of Commons, has endowed a seat in the proposed new English National Theater in the name of Virginia.

The theater will be built in the Kensington district of London, and each endowed seat will bear a plaque giving the name of the donor and the name of the individual or place commemorated.

REMOVE GIFT TREE

ST. LOUIS.—The scrubby little dogwood tree, planted on the Memorial Plaza in downtown St. Louis recently by Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York City, has been moved to a new location. "It would never have done to leave that tree on the Memorial Plaza," City Forester Ludwig Baumann explained. "The smoke of St. Louis would have killed it." The tree, which was sent here as a gift of the 1939 New York World's Fair, now thrives in Forest Park.

SPECIAL TREE PROTECTION

(International News Service)

ST. LOUIS.—In an effort to safeguard and prolong the lives of two 200-year-old oak trees which flank the Municipal Opera stage in Forest Park, blue daylight type electric lights have been installed beneath the stage, casting their sun-like rays on the ground surrounding the roots of the trees. Nelson C. Cunliff, director of stage and settings of the theater, explained the rays from the lamps are expected to purify the soil and keep it fresh.

Fine Playground Nears Completion

First Class Equipment Is Being Added Daily To Liberty Street Location

One of the city's finest playgrounds that on the end of South Liberty St., near the Pennsylvania railroad shops, is now nearing completion.

Every day, new equipment of the most modern construction is being placed on the playgrounds. Clay has been hauled to the site and first class horseshoe pitching courts have been built.

High swings for the older children have been put in place and are excessively popular, as were chinning bars, and a number of other pieces of equipment.

A sliding board for the younger children is on the grounds and a long line of anxious children await their turn at all hours of the day.

Equipment for the playground was secured by money gained when the societies of the ward and St. Luey's church congregation sponsored several public benefit events.

Pete Cardella is in charge of the work at the playground and he has been working exceptionally hard to see that everything will be in first class condition when it is completed. Carlella is a favorite with the children visiting the site, and they all call him Pete.

As soon as the playground is completed, a public program will be presented, an amateur show will be staged, and a general inauguration program arranged to be presented at the playground.

Lawrence County Farms And Farmers

By H. R. McCulloch, County Agent

MACHINERY ADJUSTMENT MEETING

Adjustments made on farm machinery may often cause the machinery to go a much easier and more satisfactory piece of work. This is particularly true with hay making machinery and binders.

A demonstration on Binder Adjustments will be held at the farm of John Benson, North Beaver Township, Friday evening, July 8 at 6:30 o'clock.

All farmers interesting in knowing more about binder adjustments are invited to attend this meeting.

FARM FIRE LOSSES CAN BE REDUCED

The annual rural fire loss is approximately $225,000,000, according to a report received recently from the United States Department of Agriculture.

Every Lawrence County farmer must be his own building inspector, zoning officer, and in emergency, his own fireman and fire chief. It is a great responsibility since the average loss from rural fires is approximately $400. per minute.

Where possible, farm buildings should be set at right angles to prevailing winds since this lessens the danger of sparks being carried from one building to another. Constructing roofs of fire-resistant material is also recommended. Furnaces, stoves, and stovepipes properly installed and inspected regularly reduce a common cause of fire. Chimneys may be cleaned of soot with a few bricks or rocks in a sack at the end of a long rope.

A system of grounded conductors gives protection against lightning. Care in handling lamps and lanterns, in the disposition of ashes, and in the storing and handling of gasoline will help prevent many fires. Rubbish should not be allowed to accumulate where it may become a fire hazard. Keeping ladders handy and water or fire extinguishers available is an excellent precaution against serious fires.

LARGE BODIES ARE DESIRED IN CHICKS

Lawrence County poultrymen are following various systems of feeding growing stock.

The thought behind most of the methods used is to develop birds with large bodies. One plan that is giving satisfaction is to feed the birds on range only enough mash in the morning to last until late afternoon. The hoppers are left empty for the remainder of the day. The birds are given a heavy feeding of grain in the evening.

A number of poultrymen started feeding oats when their chickens were six weeks old and are now feeding the grain liberally. Oats may be left before the birds at all times with satisfactory results after they are accustomed to them. However, birds fed heavily on oats should have access to a hard, sharp grit to aid in grinding the oats hulls.

Heavy oats feeding seems to lessen picking problems. If the birds are used to them, oats may be left before layers, a practice which apparently has considerable merit. The amount of oats fed breeders should be controlled so that the birds will eat adequate amounts of mash to give good hatches and produce strong chicks.

CONTROL INROADS OF CABBAGE WORMS

Cabbage worms are working on heads of cabbage that have begun to form.

The attention of cabbage growers is called to the advisability of spraying or dusting their plants to control the insects. Arsenate of lead is the most efficient arsenical insecticide. As a dust, it should be used at the rate of 25 pounds with 75 pounds of hydrated lime. For use as a spray, mix 8 to 10 pounds of lead arsenate with 100 gallons of water.

A spreading agent is necessary with the spray. Milk powder or one of the other spreaders available on the market may be used. Soap is also a valuable spreader.

Arsenical poisons may be unsafe for use on plants where the outer leaves are not trimmed from the head later. In such cases, a dust containing one-half to three-fourth per cent rotenone will be effective if applied at the rate of 25 to 30 pounds per acre. It may be applied either with a power or hand duster, depending upon the size of the planting. It is particularly advisable to use rotenone for the control of cabbage leaf worms on loose leaf cabbage varieties where the danger of arsenical residue on the plants must be avoided.

SUMMER VEGETABLE GARDEN SUGGESTIONS

The period between July 1 and 15 is the division between spring and fall gardens.

By July 15, most gardeners will have removed early seeded lettuce, spinach, and radishes. Many will have used their early cabbage, beets, carrots, and onions. Late cabbage, celery, and broccoli can be planted in their place about the first week in July. About July 15, Chinese cabbage, endive, beets, carrots, and turnips for storing may be seeded. August is the time for sowing fall lettuce, spinach, and radishes.

During July and August vegetable seeds germinate in a short time and the plants grow rapidly, provided sufficient moisture is present. The most frequent reason for failure of mid-summer seedings is the lack of moisture during germination and while the plants are small.

If convenient, apply water gently, being careful not to puddle the ground. It is important during germination to keep the soil moist or at least damp at all times. Dry conditions for a day may be enough to kill the seedlings.

BUY HOSE TO SUIT NEED IS ADVICE TO CONSUMER

Are your hosiery bills high? Do you get what you ask for when buying hose? These and other questions are perplexing to most homemakers when they visit the hosiery counter.

To help the consumer to get her money's worth, Miss Julia Markle, home economics extension representative in Lawrence County, gives the answers to some of these ever-present questions which the consumer asks herself.

Q. How can I tell what size hosiery to buy?

A. Stand on a tapeline or ruler and measure the exact length of the foot from heel to toe. For the foot size of silk hose add a half inch to this measurement; for cotton hose add three-quarters inch to this measurement; for wool hose add one inch to this measurement. With the knee bent, measure the length of the leg from the heel to the point above the knee where the garter will be fastened in the welt. Add one inch to this measurement. This will indicate the correct leg length of the hose. Be sure to check these measurements at the hosiery counter as some hosiery is not accurately marked. Also, remember to check your own measurements occasionally because feet do continue to grow.

Q. Why do some stockings wrinkle and sag at the ankles?

A. Sagging at the ankles may be due to several reasons. Rayon stockings tend to sag because the rayon fiber is not elastic enough to hug the ankles as silk does. If silk has been skimped on in the knitting of the stocking it too will wrinkle. Test for the elasticity and generous amount of yarn by grasping the stocking at the instep and heel and pulling across the stocking. It should stretch readily to about seven inches and when released spring back into shape. If the stretch is meager, it indicates a skimping of yarn. If after stretching the stocking crawls back into shape slowly it shows that the fiber has lost its elasticity and will not hold its shape. Tubular knit stocking will also wrinkle at the ankles because there is no difference in shape at the calf and ankle.

Q. How can I tell a full-fashioned stocking from a circular knit stocking?

A. Examine the wales, or lengthwise stitches near the seam of the stocking. If the rows of stitches slant into the fashion marks, the stocking is full-fashioned, but if the stitches run parallel to the stocking seam, it is a circular knit stocking.

Q. What weight of hose is most practical?

A. This depends on the occasion for which the hose will be worn. One and 2-thread weight is recommended for evening dress wear; 3-thread weight for afternoon dress; 4 and 5-thread for morning street wear; 6-thread for walking or for those who are on their feet a great deal; 7 and 8-thread for heavy service wear; 9 to 12-thread weight for stout persons.

Q. Does water-spot proofing injure stockings?

A. No. On the contrary, the water-spot proofing tends to protect the fibers and make them more durable.

REMOVE FISH ODORS

The fishy odor on hands or dishes after a "shore" meal is most annoying. Home economics extension specialists at the Pennsylvania State College offer this remedy after handling fish. "Wash the hands with hot water and salt but without soap until after rinsing off the salt. A strong hot solution of salt in water without soap removes fish odors from dishes."

U. S. Says Smiths Outnumber All In Security Records

Hold Nearly 500,000 Social Security Cards; Johnsons Next

Claims of the American branch of the Smith family to numerical superiority over all other family groups are supported by a survey of the 39,000,000 Social Security account numbers assigned by Bureau of Old-Age Insurance, it was announced today by Weiland J. Michael, manager of the Social Security board's field office in the Johnson building.

Account numbers have been issued to approximately 470,190 Smiths. Next in order are the Johnsons with 348,520; the Browns with more than 253,750; the Williams with 249,312 and the Millers with 238,980. The Joneses stand in sixth place with 232,540. All variations in the spelling of a name are grouped together. For instance, Schmidt, Schmitz and Smythe are considered part of the Smith family.

The survey, conducted by the Bureau of Old-Age Insurance, discloses the shortest family name in its records is "E". Whether "E" is a man or woman will not be revealed, in conformance with the board's policy of holding its information confidential. The longest name yet located is Xenogianokopoulos.

AROUND CITY HALL

City of New Castle having ratified an agreement between the Municipal Equipment company and the city for the purchase of 437 parking meters it is likely that police officials will make a survey and decide soon whether to keep all or only a portion of the meters in operation. Under the provisions of the legislation the city is not directly responsible for payments for the meters. They will be paid for by the auto-riding public which wants a place to park for one hour for five cents. The possibility exists that either some member of the police department or someone else will be instructed as to how damaged parts may be repaired and he will service the parking meter system.

Relative to the parking meter controversy yesterday Councilman William H. Dunlap said the contract should have been terminated some time ago because the company had agreed to sign an agreement putting the entire installation out and had not done so. Until such an agreement appeared in the ordinance to authorize a contract between the two parties Mr. Dunlap said he would not vote for any bills. Councilman Joseph D. Alexander was under the impression that council could not pay bills amounting to more than $500 unless a previous ordinance authorizing such was adopted. Later the solicitor's assistant, Gilbert E. Lenz said such was unnecessary under the circumstances and he said yesterday all moves made so far were legal.

Purchase Director James J. Fink recommended to council Thursday that the city enter into a compromise with the banking department of Pennsylvania whereby it would pay 75 percent of the face of the tax owed on the Westinghouse Chemical property, Seventh ward, which would bring the city $522.00. It appears a Mr. Canning of that department asked the city if a compromise could be arranged and if so it might be possible for the city to secure the taxes. He said that some other municipalities had accepted as low as 60 percent and 50 percent of the face to settle some tax cases. Action recommending that acceptance be given will be placed before the State Banking department.

Babson Says Farmers Hold "Recovery" Torch; Good Crops In Nation

By ROGER W. BABSON
(Copyright 1938)

DENVER, July 1.—Good reports continually reached me this week as I crossed the West. This may be a bad year for the manufacturer, but the farmer [illegible] Our chief [illegible] Wyoming, Montana and Kansas. [illegible] 25-40 per cent.

BABSON

When I first started collecting business statistics 35 years ago, the most important factors were crop forecasts. All other barometers such as carloadings, retail trade, steel operations, and new financing, were secondary. If crops were good, business was sure to be good. In those days, if farmers had a good crop, they had money to spend. This in turn made business good. Carloadings, retail trade and other barometers automatically went up.

Old Signposts Ignored

However, many people believe that all that has changed now. Since the depression, there has been a new method of figuring the effect of crops. Many are pessimistic when prospects point to a bumper harvest, while a crop failure is regarded as an optimistic sign. The New Deal "scarce dollar" has also caused much confusion with some of the present statistics. They remember 1931 and 1932 as good farm years, but the boom dropped out of business. They also remember that the crop failures of 1934 and 1936 were followed by good fall business in both years. In addition, they have seen farm prices crumble this spring as forecasts of big crops were announced. Hence, they look upon good harvests as a sign of poor business.

These views, however, are all retrospective. In 1934 and 1936 we had bumper crops from previous [illegible] These surpluses had been wiped out and placed the farmer [illegible] In 1931 and 1932 the [illegible] At that time we were suffering from over-production in industry as well as agriculture. The big crops were only a drag on the market. Furthermore, our surpluses back in those gloomy days were not exportable because of foreign trade conditions.

Good Crops Boost Activity

Our carry-overs from last season, while larger than average, are not excessive. Prices are down to world levels and are not particularly profitable. However, big crops mean more workers to handle them. They mean wear and tear on farm machinery and trucks. They mean the filling of more space in grain elevators. They mean more freight cars to haul grain and livestock to market. They mean more activity in farm implement centers. In short, they mean better business to all the by-product and service businesses.

Lower prices this year may bring small total incomes for farmers in spite of the bigger harvests. But there will still be a lot of money changing hands in the country. Furthermore, lower farm prices mean lower food bills for hard-pressed city families. This releases more of the money dollars for other purchases. On the other hand, if we were faced with a crop failure, the entire picture would be changed. Fewer farmers would be spending money, more people would be on farm relief, more elevator companies and granger railroads would go into bankruptcy, food prices would be higher for poor city people. A crop failure in 1938 would be disastrous. It would knock all chances for a business pick-up this fall galley-west.

All Sections Have a Crop

Farm income should be evenly spread throughout the country this year. During each of the last seven years some part of North America has been suffering from drought. The Prairie Provinces of Canada, for instance, will have their first good crop this season since 1931! My observation is that every section should have in the good 1938 growing conditions. The previous southern Dakotas, eastern Montana, western Iowa, Nebraska and the Oklahoma-Texas-Colorado dust bowl, are all in good shape. So, while total farm buying power will be somewhat less than last year, its even distribution will be a stimulus to better business everywhere this fall.

The only fly in the ointment is the decline in the buying power of the farmer's products as compared with the things he must buy. Industrial wage scales, freight rates, taxes and overhead prevent the price of manufactured articles following the law of supply and demand as sensitively as do raw farm products. For instance, farm prices are off 28 per cent from a year ago, but products the farmer must buy are down only 7 per cent.

Farmers Best Customers

This, however, is a long-term problem. For the months right ahead, good farm conditions will help business. The "old-fashioned" theory that good crops and low money rates mean better business still holds. Investors take note that mail-order companies, farm-tool makers, and granger railroads will be the biggest commercial beneficiaries. Sales managers must not be fooled by the present decline in rural business from a year ago. Later this summer and early this fall, farm areas will be the best markets for manufactured goods. My forecast is that the farmer will lead the nation out of the recession of 1938!

Sight Restored After 11 Years

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 1.—"It looks like a new world," said Harold Bleakley, 20, blind for 11 years, today when he returned here from New York where a successful operation restored his sight.

"I think I'll celebrate by just looking," he said. The most pleasing sight he saw after 11 years of almost total darkness, he added, was his mother's face.

The boy's sight was restored by a remarkable operation at medical center in which new pupils were "bored" in his eyeballs.

His eyes are still weak but doctors say they will improve and gradually grow stronger. At present he can see an automobile for two blocks.

For eight years he attended the Western Pennsylvania School for the Blind. When commencement exercises were held his father received the diploma in behalf of his son. Now his ambition is to attend the University of Pittsburgh and take a course in psychology.

Harold became blind when he was nine. While playing "cowboy and Indian" at his home he was struck in the left eye with an arrow. Both eyes became inflamed and he lost his sight.

Security Cards Are Sought By Young

Young men and women not more than 25 years old make up over one-third of all those now applying for Social Security account numbers, according to a statement issued today by John J. Corson, acting director of the Bureau of Old-Age Insurance of the Social Security board.

Pointing out that most of these young workers are probably taking their first regular jobs, Mr. Corson cited the proportionate increase in applications from persons of this age as evidence that the initial registration of workers under this system has been almost completed.

"From now on," he said, "we may expect a normal increase of applications coming from those who have not previously been employed in commercial and industrial jobs covered by this program.

Veterans Hear Governor Earle

Welcome Is Given To Blue And Gray Veterans At Gettysburg

ADDRESS MADE THIS AFTERNOON

(International News Service)

GETTYSBURG, July 1.—As his predecessor had a quarter of century before him, Gov. George H. Earle today stood amid the fading ranks of the Blue and Gray and welcomed them "with outstretched hands and overflowing hearts."

Twenty-five years ago Gov. John K. Tener stood among a mighty host of 54,000 veterans of the Union and Confederate armies gathered together for the first reunion since the bloody battle of Gettysburg and invited them to return again. Time today had narrowed the returning veterans to 2,000.

"You have lived to see yourself immortalized in history," Governor Earle told them. "You are no less immortalized in the affection of those of us who have come after you." He added:

"To you who are living, the survivors of the great armies of the south and the north, I am proud to extend the welcome of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania. To you we pay our tribute, for none can question your valor nor detract from your richly-earned glory. Whether you wear the heroic grey of the Confederacy or the valiant blue of the republic, we greet you as brothers, with outstretched hands and overflowing hearts.

"We do not question now the great forces which brought your armies into conflict. Time has given us wisdom to see that those forces were not of any single man's making, nor under any man's control. All that we can see today—all that the mirror of history shows—is that each of you bore arms for the protection and defense of all that was near and dear, and no greater tribute can be paid to any man."

Here, on the battlefield of Gettysburg, continued Governor Earle, the veterans of the Civil war were gathered together as a symbol "that the one and only great wound in the fabric of the republic has been forever healed, that the south and the north are inseparably united".

X-rays Called Valuable In Dog Ailments

(International News Service)

DENVER—Dogs, like humans, can be diagnosed and treated with X-rays, Myrtle Jones of the Proctor hospital at Peoria, Ill., told delegates to a recent state convention of X-ray technicians here.

"X-ray is useful in fracture cases," Miss Jones said. "A dog cannot guide the doctor by describing his symptoms. He can only whimper and suffer. It's hard to keep splints and casts on dogs and abdominal operations are often fatal.

"This is because they claw at the bandages. But keeping them quiet by the use of drugs seems to result in a large measure of success."

She told also of how X-ray pictures could be used to locate a foreign body in the stomach.

Harvard Library In Possession Of Rare Legal Work

(International News Service)

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—First edition of the most important early American legal treatise, "Conductor Generalis," published for laymen called upon to act as justices of the peace, sheriffs, coroners, and constables, has been acquired by the Harvard Law School Library.

The little handbook was recently discovered, and may be the only remaining copy of the first edition, according to Professor Eldon R. James, librarian. An edition of the same book dated 1722 was believed to have been the first edition until the discovery of the Harvard book which was published in 1711.

FRENCH SLAYER OF AMERICAN DANCER WRITES MEMOIRS

(International News Service)

PARIS—Eugene Weidmann, the murderer of the young American dancer Jean de Koven and five others, is writing his memoirs.

He has found an American publisher who is willing to pay $2,000 for the confessions of the criminal, who strangled and robbed his victims, according to his lawyer, Mme. Renee Jardin.

Weidmann expects to have his memoirs completed before the beginning of his trial. He probably believes that the revelations may furnish some good arguments, for his lawyers who claim he belongs to an insane asylum instead of a prison or guillotine.

He is said to be writing day and night and is describing in detail his hideous crimes, of which he regrets only one, the murder of the beautiful American dancer.

Whether he is insane or not, Wiedmann is clever enough to negotiate the rights of publication and royalty from his prison cell, and has also obtained permission from jail authorities to augment his daily food from his revenue.

Say one thing for a European dictator. If a few Americans clamor for their "rights", he doesn't risk his nation's welfare to please them.

Exaggerated shoulder emphasis is out definitely, but shoulder padding continues in use.

Even Veterans Must Eat

No matter how old a veteran may be, the mess tent is still the mecca at the camp. Gen. John W. Harris, 90 (left), of Oklahoma City, of the Federal Army, and Gen. S. S. Simons, of California, who served in the Confederate army with the Virginia cavalry, are pictured at lunch at Gettysburg National Military Park, where the 75th anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg is being observed. (Central Press)

Pictured "shooting the sun" is Charles W. Crouse, of Philadelphia, skipper of the schooner Vega, which left Newport, R. I., in the annual yacht race to Bermuda and which has been reported missing. Five other Philadelphians who formed the crew of the racing yacht are missing with him.

TO SUCCEED SNELL AS LEADER?

Joseph W. Martin, Jr. — James W. Wadsworth

Representatives Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts and James W. Wadsworth of New York, Republicans, are mentioned as minority leader prospects as the present leader, Representative Bertrand Snell of New York, retires to private life. Martin, already holding the unofficial title of "assistant minority leader", is expected to be a candidate and Snell's successor. Although Wadsworth was among the first to be suggested, friends said they doubted he would actively seek the post. —Central Press

Seek Supervised Hunting In Deer 'Problem Areas'

(International News Service)

BEND, Ore.—A request that the "problem areas" of the Malheur national forest, where deer are reported in such large numbers they face starvation during the first severe winter, be opened to supervised hunting was filed with the Oregon game commission by Deschutes county sportsmen.

The sportsmen pointed out that nature was allowed to handle a similar situation in the Kaibab national forest in Arizona, and that 9 out of every 10 deer died during a hard winter.

FAMED COAL MINE FIRE NOW MECCA FOR TOURISTS

(International News Service)

NEW STRAITSVILLE, O. Perry county's famed coal mine fire has broken into the headlines again.

People have been coming here since the fire broke out in 1884 but it wasn't until recently that someone conceived the idea of luring pretty young girls to show the guests around.

Organized as a corporation, the girls charge a small fee to show the visitors the interesting fire spots. The guides carry ropes over their shoulders to pull the sightseer from any hole he might accidentally stumble into.

Meanwhile as visitors flock here every week end 400 miners are working three shifts a day in an effort to bring under control the greatest coal mine conflagration in the history of the United States.

You may feel superior to politics, brother, but you can't grow pretty flowers without monkeying with dirt.

BEES ON RAMPAGE

(International News Service)

BRAZIL, Ind. Bees are irate in this region this summer and apiarists are trying to discover the reason. A number of bee raisers have appeared recently with faces swollen from stings and have reported more trouble than in any previous year. Some apiarists believe it is due to the extremely wet weather. They say the bees are angry because the water has interfered with their gathering of pollen.

Red Cross Warns Against Fourth Of July Hazards

Fireworks, Automobiles, And Water Will Take Annual Toll Of Life

PUBLIC ASKED TO USE CAUTION

(Special To The News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 1.—The War of the Revolution will be refought in gala mood this year, with battlefields transferred to the nation's back yard, its highways and swimming places, the American Red Cross pointed out today in its annual drive to limit the results of "casualty and battery by carelessness" over the July Fourth week-end.

In a nation-wide plea for strict observance of safety rules, officials of the organization stress of the fact that again this year celebrants face triple exposure to accidents over the holidays. They urged extreme safeguards in the use of fireworks, in water sports and in motoring.

According to John Melpolder, director of Red Cross Home and Farm Accident Prevention Service, fireworks alone, in the past 30 years, have killed or maimed more than 100,000 Americans who were commemorating an independence which has proved more costly to celebrate than to gain. He pointed out that because of the human factor involved, there is no such thing as "safe fireworks."

Turning to highway accidents, the Red Cross says motor vehicles will take a greater holiday toll than fireworks. This prediction, they point out, is based on previous Fourth of July automobile fatality records and on their own highway first aid experience. More than 4,000 emergency first aid stations and mobile first aid units have been established by the Red Cross on rural highways to give immediate care to injured motorists.

"Because of the season and the occasion, Fourth of July week-end drownings are usually abnormally high," Harold F. Enlows, director of life saving, states. "But I feel sure if swimmers and boaters will observe the following rules there will be fewer water tragedies to mar the festive spirit this year:

"Wait at least an hour after eating before going into the water.

"Swim parallel to the shore, rather than straight out. You can swim just as far and in greater safety.

"If the boat overturns, it can support the weight of its occupants. Stay with it."

He suggested that one of the best ways to avoid accident and serious injury in the future is to take Red Cross instruction in first aid and life saving, made available by chapters in most communities throughout the United States.

Dismissed G-Man Makes Statement

Leon G. Thurro, Says I Didn't Mean To Do Anything That Hoover Doesn't Do"

HELPED TO BREAK ESPIONAGE RING

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, July 1.—Taking the position that he planned to do nothing more than J. Edgar Hoover himself had done, Leon G. Turrou, former ace G-Man who was dismissed "with prejudice," today gave his side of the controversy with his former superiors.

Turrou, who played a leading role in working up the espionage case against the 16 alleged Nazi government spies in New York recently, had "resigned" to write syndicate articles dealing with the "expose." He was informed through the Department of Justice, however, that he had been discharged for violation of the G-Men's oath.

In a statement today Turrou pointed out that Hoover, director of the F.B.I., had written scores of articles and a book while he was still in service.

To Show Scope

Turrou declared his only motives in contracting to write the offending articles were to show the scope of the alleged German spy conspiracy and to demonstrate the need for more men in America's various intelligence services.

"If Mr. Hoover proposes now to hold me firmly to a statement signed casually, while he continues to secure a huge income from his own writings in addition to his salary from the government, I shall take steps at once to see that these rules about writing are applied equally to all members of the F.B.I., from the lowliest agent to the director himself," said Turrou.

Says Stock Market Presages Return To Normal Times

New President Of Exchange Says Business Is Now More Hopeful

By ROBERT A. HEREFORD
International News Service Staff Correspondent

ST. LOUIS, July 1.—The present upsurge in the stock market presages a "return to normal times," William McChesney Martin, Jr., told International News Service today. Martin, 31-year-old former St. Louisan, chosen yesterday as first paid president of the New York Stock Exchange, returned here for a brief visit.

"There are a number of reasons for my belief that recent developments in the stock market presage a return to normal times," said Martin, the $48,000 a year president of the exchange.

"There is the fact that inventories are all washed out and must be replaced. The usual indices of business are rising and there also is a new spirit of cooperation between business and government."

"Big business is more hopeful than is has been for some time," Martin added.

Martin said that the new liberalism that has invaded Wall Street has come to stay, and that the spirit of cooperation that the exchange is showing toward the government is being followed by other elements in big business, including the utilities.

Cousins To Get Fortune Left By Pittsburgh Hermit

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 1.—The $35,829 estate left by Peter Laibach, known as "Peter the hermit," was distributed among his five first cousins today in an order by orphans court.

The money, mostly in old bills and coins, mortgages and federal bonds was found stuffed in crevices in the walls of the miserable shack perched on a cliff where Laibach lived on scraps of food he managed to pick up in the neighborhood. It was first believed he was murdered but an autopsy disclosed death was due to natural causes.

About $6,000 each will go to Adam Laibach and Charles F. Laibach, both of Chicago; Catherine Laibach, of Laclede, Ill., and Maria Philomen Ruppel and Karl Laibach, both of Frankfort, Germany. The remainder will be used for expenses in distributing the estate. Despite his fortune, Laibach never changed his ways and saved practically all his income of $15 a week from mortgages and bonds.

Swedish Royalty Roosevelt Guests

Will Spend Night As Guests At Hyde Park Home Of President

By GEORGE DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HYDE PARK, N. Y., July 1—Crown Princess Louise and members of the royal party are to arrive at Hyde Park today to be overnight guests of President Roosevelt.

The chief executive paid a visit to the ailing crown prince Gustaf Adolf in New York yesterday and expressed regret that the royal visitor was confined temporarily by a kidney ailment which interrupted plans for a visit of several eastern and mid-western cities.

Accompanying the crown princess to the summer white house were Swedish Minister and Mme. W. Bostrom; Miss Breta Steuch, lady-in-waiting; Count Nils Fersen Gyldenstolpe, chamberlain; Lieut. Col. Crane, military aide, and George T. Summerlin, chief of the state department's protocol division. They will remain here until tomorrow afternoon.

U. S. Institutes Drastic Safeguards For Defense Secrets

Secret Codes Being Revised

Many Other Moves Being Made To Protect Military Secrets

ESPIONAGE ACTS CAUSE WORRY

By ROBERT G. NIXON

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The American government has instituted drastic precautions to safeguard national defense secrets from potential foreign enemies.

These stop-gaps include, it was learned today, revision of diplomatic, army and navy confidential codes.

An elaborate system of guarding America's vital defense secrets has become necessary in the light of the intensification of foreign espionage activities, sensationally brought to light with the recent indictment by a New York Federal Grand Jury of 18 alleged Nazi spies, including four high officials of the German war ministry.

One of the army air corps secret signal code books, which outlined aerial warfare communication procedure, was filched and presumably turned over to the Nazi government by one of the indicted secret agents.

Revise Codes

A thorough revision of the codes used for highly confidential dispatches in the diplomatic corps as well as the army and navy, has become advisable because of the widespread spy endeavors.

Officially the war, navy and state departments declined to comment on the status of their confidential code books as these matters are necessarily surrounded by the utmost secrecy.

So far as the departments which deal with national defense know, the spy rings have not been able to get to their confidential codes, although it is established that they have obtained the more elemental ones.

The latter are used to shorten lengthy dispatches not of a secret nature to conserve sending time and cable costs. The code procedure stolen from Mitchel Field, N. Y., one of the army's chief air bases, was of this nature and used chiefly for the training of personnel in the coding and de-coding of dispatches.

Only the highest and most trusted officers henceforth will be permitted to handle the more secret codes used in the transmission of defense secrets.

In addition an elaborate system has been set up to safeguard the secrets of army, navy and air corps weapons when they are being manufactured.

Only persons who can be trusted and whose characters and connections have been checked, will be employed on the manufacture of new and confidential airplanes, anti-aircraft devices, tanks and warships. All such developments are being kept under strict guard during their construction.

Furthermore, the system calls for construction of all defense secrets in a peacemeal manner. One workman is employed on only one small part of the whole mechanism and sees only one blueprint. In an airplane engine, for instance, several thousand blueprints are used.

At night the blueprints are kept in time-clocked vaults. During the day no workman is permitted to leave the plants and arsenals.

Highly secret gadgets such as the air corps bomb sight, considered the most accurate in the world, are never permitted in the hands of anyone but the officers who actually use these instruments. They are checked in and out only for the time used and then kept in guarded vaults.

These devices are manufactured in separate parts and the parts assembled by trusted officers.

Wherever possible ultimate safeguards are taken which make the secret devices impossible of reproduction even should one fall into the hands of an enemy. This may be illustrated by the recoil mechanism of the famous French "seventy-five" field piece, which, even though they were captured by German troops by the hundreds, could never be copied exactly because their operation was dependent solely upon certain small parts being ground to certain micrometric dimensions.

How Legislative Session Appeals To Young Girl

(International News Service)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 1.—As an outstanding piece of reporting, newspapermen at the humdrum final session of the state legislature today left the prize award to go to an unnamed girl of about 10.

She spent the afternoon in the gallery above the press box, scribbling on a pad of paper. It was brushed over the railing when she left. It read:

1. Everybody votes on something.
2. Two men talk. They sit down.
3. I got a drink.
4. Somebody else talks some more.
5. They vote again.
6. They stop. It is a recess.
7. The speaker says something. But somebody else talks louder. He sits down.

The newsmen decided she had just about hit the mark without wasting any words on the antics of the more playful legislators busy setting off firecrackers under their colleges.

Scout Camping Season Is Near

Camp John Phillips Will Open Season On July 9—Many Boys Are Registered

Boy Scouts in the Lawrence County council are anxiously looking forward to the opening of Boy Scout Camp John M. Phillips, near Rose Point. According to Bernard Hook, chairman of the camping committee, the season will officially begin on Saturday, July 9.

Everything at the camp is in ship shape order and the facilities are finer this year than they have been for many years. A supply of new equipment has been purchased, and many changes in the camps general appearance made.

This season, the camp will be headed by Camp Director Nicholas Casillo, and his staff. Casillo has handled the work of the camp for some time and is well experienced. He is a lover of the outdoors and well suited for camp life. Casillo is an instructor at the Senior high school.

Although a few openings yet remain in the first weeks schedule, the camp staff expects to have a full camp of boys for the first week of camp. A new schedule for camping has been arranged for this year.

Each period will begin on Saturday afternoon and end on the following Saturday morning. There will be four camping periods, over a period of four weeks. Many of the local scouts who have signed up for the camp, have done so for the entire four week period, and will remain at the camp during the entire season.

An excellent program of activities has been arranged for the camping periods. During nice weather the scouting program will be planned for the outdoors. In case of inclement weather at any time during the four periods, provision has been made to provide indoor activities in the crafts building of the camp.

A nightly campfire, in the beautiful natural surroundings of Camp Phillips will be a feature of the camping program. A program for the parents and friends of the boys is being planned for sometime during the season. Full plans and date for this event will be announced later.

Joshua—A Choice Of Loyalties

"Brass Tacks" On The Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text

Joshua 24:15—"As for me and my house, we will serve Jehovah."

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson series, on July 3, begins a three months' course on "Messages from Israel's Early Leaders", this first lesson being on Joshua, based on Numbers 27:15-23; Joshua 1:1-9; 24:1-31, particularly Joshua 1:2-6; 24:14-21; with Joshua 24:15, the Golden Text: "As for me and my house, we will serve Jehovah.")

"God Buries the workmen, but carries forward the work." The time comes for all of us when "we rest from our labors and our works do follow us."

Joshua Succeeds Moses

The proof of Moses' greatness as a leader is found not only in his own colossal work, but also in his selection and training of his successor, who was made ready to carry forward his work after God should remove him from the picture. Moses did not pout and rebel because he was to be removed from leadership. He played the game like a man with no sign of jealously or bitterness and Joshua's success became Moses' joyful anticipation. Blessed is he that can step down gracefully! "And Joshua, the son of Nun was full of the spirit of wisdom; for Moses had laid his hands upon him; and the children of Israel hearkened unto him and did as Jehovah commanded Moses." Joshua is fitly called "Moses' minister". He rose to the position of national leadership through the school of service. He learned to take orders and thus fitted himself to give orders. By his loyalty under authority he proved himself worthy of the nation's loyalty to him and his authority.

"Moses, my servant, is dead; now therefore arise, go over this Jordan, thou, and all this people, unto the land which I do give to them." Thus God commissioned Joshua to succeed Moses. Moses had led them out; Joshua was now to lead them in. And as God calls, so he equips, and sees us through that to which he calls us: "Every place that the sole of your foot shall tread upon, to you have I given it, as I spake unto Moses . . . There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life; as I was with Moses, so I will be with thee; I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee." This for us and our work, as for that of Moses and Joshua, when God puts us on a job he foots the bills!

Joshua's Part—and Ours

But Joshua is to have his part in which he must be found faithful. "Be strong and of good courage; for thou shalt cause this people to inherit the land which I sware unto their fathers to give them. Only be strong and very courageous to observe to do according to all the law, which Moses, my servant, commanded thee: turn not from it to the right hand or to the left, that thou mayest have good success whithersoever thou goest." God pledges his own presence and power but he also binds us to follow his word: "This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth, but thou shalt meditate therein day and night, that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein; for then thou shalt make thy way prosperous and then thou shalt have good success."

The Human Side Of The News

(By EDWIN C. HILL)

Copyright 1938 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Once again the Blue and the Gray meet on the battlefield of Gettysburg, whose ridges and valleys remain very much the same as when the tide of the Confederacy reached its high-water mark at Cemetery Ridge on the third day of July, 75 years ago.

It was the privilege and unforgettable experience of this reporter to be a looker-on and to try to tell the story of the fiftieth anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg and Pickett's charge, one of the most gallant and thrilling feats of arms in all military history.

Twenty-five years ago, on those three hot July days in the hills of Southern Pennsylvania, there were 50,000 old men there who had fought in that battle which was the turning point of the war between the states. Fifty thousand still left. I can see them now so plainly as they fraternized at the camp fires of that great gathering as they lifted their voices in mighty choruses in the old marching and battle-songs.

It was hot and it was dusty on that memorable occasion. But Uncle Sam was a good and careful host. General Hunter Liggett ran the great camp, and his organization was so efficient that I believe there was only one death among all those 50,000 elderdly men, and only a few dozen cases of sunstroke or other illness.

In this 75th observation, for which the Congress has appropriated $900,000, there will be few, indeed, of those ancients who saw the Confederacy rolled back by Meade's artillery. If a thousand attend it will be remarkable, I think, for a few veterans can be under 90.

As all know, Gettysburg was the turning point of the Civil War. If Lee had smashed his way through Meade's troops in those terrible three days, there would have been no United States, probably, as we know it today. If George Pickett had succeeded in his terrific spear-thrust at the vitals of the Union Army, the history of the country and of the world, for the matter of that, might have been very different.

I don't suppose that there ever was a more desperately courageous military action than the charge made by Pickett's brigade directly into the yawning maws of the Union cannon—the most glorious charge in the annals of American arms, the terrible, futile charge that swept up to and partly over the Union lines, before it was hurled back in defeat and disaster.

It was on July 3, 1913, that I stood on the battlefield with General George Pickett's widow and with her looked upon the most moving spectacle it has ever been my fortune to behold.

From Cemetery Ridge, the highland held by the Confederate forces, where Robert E. Lee stood with his staff that fateful day with Longstreet and A. P. Hill, I saw a gallant company appear and move down the green slope. They bore the same old shell-torn battleflags that had waved over Pickett and his men. They came one by one, those heroic ancients, with slow and faltering steps, but their heads were thrown back and their eyes bright with remembered glory. They had come to a great age, not one under seventy, and most of them well past eighty, they who had been the young lads who charged with Pickett.

Through a field of standing wheat, all golden in the sunshine, they made their way, these last survivors of the old brigade. Over the once blood-drenched field their still young and fiery spirits carried their bent and weary bodies. And after what seemed an age, so slowly did they advance, these old men, all alone with their memories, climbed the long slope to Cemetery Ridge, the old position of the Union Army.

Slowly, wearily, they ascended to the stone fences of the Bloody Angle, the highwater mark of the Southern Confederacy. And then with a great shout, another company of old men, the survivors of the Union forces that beat Pickett back, stood up behind the stone work, and cheering, swarmed forth to grasp the hands of men they had tried in their youth to kill.

All this Mrs. Pickett watched with the tears streaming down her wrinkled cheeks, and as she looked on she held a letter in her hand—sheets of faded, yellow paper. It was the letter General Pickett wrote to her immediately after the battle, a letter written in anguish and bitter sorrow. "Even now," the general wrote to his girl wife, "I can hear the cheering as I give the order, 'Forward!' I can still feel their faith and trust in me and their love for the cause. I can still feel the thrill of their joyous voices as they called out all along the line, 'We'll follow you, Marse George! We'll follow you!'"

"How faithfully they kept their word, following me on to their death, and I, believing in that promised support, led them on! But for you I would rather a million times be back there with the dead, to sleep for all time in an unknown grave."

World's Woes Due To Men Women Insist

By HOWARD BERRY

International News Service Staff

LONDON, July 1.—The world is in a mess that can be straightened out by giving women the equality of women.

This strong indictment of the domination which is condemned in the annual report for 1937 of the British National Union of Women Teachers.

The direct cause of world chaos, the report states, is in man's attitude to the status, education and rights of the women in the family circle.

As it was in the family circle that human relationships first went askew, the report adds, it is there that improvement must begin, and until that is done the brotherhood of man will be meaningless.

Sex Equality Urged

"Only a few people," the report declares, "where men and women live as pals, not one dominant and the other 'inferior', can be called a democracy."

Democracy has not failed in other places. The fact is that it has never yet been tried.

Asked by International News Service to elucidate on this startling attack on the male sex, Miss B. M. Peacock of the Central Hall of the National Union of Women Teachers said:

"Man has always been the lord and woman the worshipper. I say that attitude is abhorrent. I have not much hope for a happy world.

Demands Recognition

"Woman must be recognized as a person in herself and not merely as the wife or mother of man. I am sure that if women are destroyed from their employment which has been their life's work they will be lost."

"Men have been the governing sex. Governments have not been for the benefit of children, women and men as equals. Women must be given an equal say in the government of the world.

"I feel it is the duty of the children we are bringing up to make us the pattern in all fields. Consequently girls think that they have no right to demand equality.

"I cannot see why women should not have equal rights with men. They should not become dependent on men after marriage, but become partners, sharing duties and responsibilities. And until this comes about there will never be true freedom for everyone."

MUSIC LOVERS TO SEE FOLK DANCES FOR FIRST TIME

(International News Service)

NEW YORK—Several groups of dancers, selected from the nationalities with large colonies in this country, will present a program of historical dances and music July 7, it was announced recently.

Each group will be attired in national costume, with every effort made to present original attire, and will dance to its own native music by the Philharmonic symphony orchestra directed by Alois Modl Smallens.

"The popularity of ballet programs," says Mrs. Charles S. Guggenheimer, director of Stadium Concerts, "prompts us to try a new experiment this year in the belief that Stadium audiences are devoted to dancing." It is the first time folk dances have been offered as part of the regular programs.

HEN ADOPTS KITTENS

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—Apparently suffering from a distorted mother complex, an inquisitive pullet Rhode Island Red hen belonging to Mrs. H. J. Prickett of Perkins adopted nine kittens and refused to relinquish title to them.

Less than two weeks old, the hen is so convinced it must be removed forcibly to be fed.

Increased Postal Receipts Advance Post Office Rating For New Castle

By ARTHUR C. WIMER
(Special Washington Correspondent, New Castle News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 1.—Because postal receipts last year increased more substantially in New Castle than the nation generally, the New Castle post office has been given an advanced rating among first class post offices in a revised ranking just issued by the Post Office department.

In the calendar year of 1936, New Castle postal rates totaled $150,751. This gave the city ranking as 325th, among first class post offices. Receipts last year climbed to $170,427, thus boosting New Castle to 320th, among the first class cities.

Most first class postal cities in the New Castle area had sufficient large gains in receipts to win advanced ratings. Butler advanced from 429th to 411th; Beaver Falls from 603rd, to 585th; Aliquippa from 1072nd, to 979th; Ambridge from 1066th, to 1013. McKees Rocks however, lagged in receipt increases and dropped from 992nd to 1015th.

The gain in Ellwood City was so substantial that the city was advanced from second class into the first class. This promotion also brought a salary increase to Postmaster Thomas A. Wilson from $3,000 to $3,200 annually. With receipts of $42,130 last year, Ellwood ranks 1126th, of all first class postal centers.

Three To Face Murder Charges

Father And Two Women Draw Straws To See Which Would Kill Young Boy

(International News Service)

WAYCROSS, Ga., July 1.—Murder indictments will be sought for a man and two women who allegedly drew straws to decide which one would fatally shoot the man's 10-year-old son, Solicitor General John S. Gibson announced today.

The child, shot in the back, died May 26.

Harvey Nelson, the father, according to the solicitor general, confessed that he had plotted the death of his son with two waitresses in order to collect a $900 insurance policy.

Drew Straws

According to the confession the two waitresses, Mary Kent and Verna Mae Fowler, entered into the plot and then drew straws to decide which one would actually kill the child.

"Verna Mae drew the long straw," Nelson said, according to the solicitor, "and shot my boy as he walked out a back door."

The Fowler woman, however, held in a Savannah jail for safekeeping, charged that Nelson did the actual shooting. The trio was apprehended after a coroner's jury, refusing to accept the father's contention that the boy shot himself, returned a verdict of death "at the hands of persons unknown."

Suggests Revamping For Motor Vehicle Code In Pennsylvania

(International News Service)

BEDFORD, Pa., July 1.—Possibility of revamping the motor vehicle code loomed today as Secretary of Revenue J. Griffith Boardman invited the Pennsylvania Motor Truck association to aid in drafting, for submission to the legislature, a section dealing with maximum speeds for heavy duty vehicles.

A second revision appeared likely in the change of the date of the registration for license tags, Boardman said.

Boardman, speaking at the fifth annual convention of the association here, urged the truckers to strive for increased highway safety. He cited the safety campaign inaugurated January 1 by Gov. George H. Earle as giving Pennsylvania the distinction of leading "all the states in the number of lives saved during the first four months of this year."

Meermans Invites Public To See Modern Camp Rentz, Ready To Open '38 Season

Camp Fred L. Rentz, picturesque Slippery Rock creek retreat for New Castle Y M C A boys, will be open for public inspection all day Sunday, July 3 and Monday, July 4 General Secretary Robert L. Meermans announced today.

The 1938 camp season opens Tuesday morning, July 5, when 64 youths arrive to start their week's outing. The 64 will fill the camps cabin accommodations to capacity.

General Secretary Meermans issued a general invitation to the public to visit the camp site over the week end. He said members of the camp staff will be on hand to greet visitors and to show them around.

Many New Castle and Lawrence county residents Mr. Meermans explained, have seen the new Camp Rentz. It's one of the most modern in this state, equipped with 15 modern buildings, a new swimming pool, a sports field and 26 acres of ground.

Since 1922, he said, the Y. M. C. A. has held its summer camp at the present Camp Rentz location. For 10 years before that camp was held elsewhere.

Back in 1922 there were five tents and one acre of clear ground for the camp session. Today, the facilities, the most modern of any "Y" camp in this section of the country, offer the finest accommodations possible.

Activities Director Henry T. MacNicholas, who will serve as camp director again this year, reports that a capacity of 64 boys have been signed for the second camp week and almost that many have been signed for the third. The registration this year has been one of the heaviest of past years.

Camp Rentz on Sunday and Monday will be open to visitors from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m.

France To Honor Tercentenary Of King Louis XIV

(International News Service)

PARIS — Three centuries ago France's greatest and most sparkling king was born.

And this summer the Third French Republic intends to commemorate his birth.

Louis XIV, known as the "Roi Soleil" or Sunshine King, was born on September 5, 1638, at Saint-Germain-en-Laye, and his reign was one of the most glittering and spendthrift the world has ever seen.

Some of his glitter and glamor the French government intends to evoke this year by staging period parties and galas in the grounds of Louis XIV historic chateau at Versailles and elsewhere throughout the country.

Although plans are as yet tentative, it is understood that the tercentenary celebrations will start with exhibitions of Gobelin's tapestries of his reign and of painting and sculpture of the same period.

Much of the great classical music and drama will be revived this summer in the Opera and the Opera-Comique, and the government is believed to be planning a series of gala shows at the Marie-Antoinette theater in Versailles as well as several concerts in the famous marble circle in the chateau grounds.

An historical pageant in period dress will be staged at Saint-Germain on the terrace of the Chateau Henri IV. It will be one of the most colorful ever staged in France.

15 ANTELOPE DROWN

(International News Service)

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore.—Fifteen antelope were drowned in Guano Lake valley when they were trapped in the normally dry lake bed as the herd stampeded in by fright when they encountered the wet, muddy valley floor. The animals that perished were trampled in the stampede.

TRAINING FOR NATIVES

(International News Service)

SUVA, Fiji Islands.—To raise the condition of the native tenant farmers in the Fiji Islands, a leading sugar refining company has set up a training institute in the fertile valley of Drasa, where native youths will be given a three-year course in agriculture.

HARRISBURG, July 2.—Teachers and others may participate in a seminar on the parent-teacher movement to be held July 5 to 10, at the National Congress of Parents and Teachers headquarters, in Washington, D. C., it was announced today, by Dr. Lester K. Ade, superintendent of Public Instruction.

HEALTH EDUCATION

HARRISBURG, July 1.—"The health of the school child has become a primary interest of educators," Dr. Lester K. Ade said today. "The school health program has developed from a narrow, factual, informational presentation of physiology, hygiene, narcotics and stimulants to a point where nutrition, positive health habits, health service, and better ways of living through human relationships constitute much of the new pattern."

King George Reintroduces Old Routines

(International News Service)

LONDON—Although he has only been on the British throne little more than a year, King George has quickly reverted to type in following in "his father's foosteps".

He has reintroduced his father's routine at Buckingham Palace, and many of the changes made by the Duke of Windsor during his short reign as king have been abolished.

Chief among these is the "short lunch" usually consisting of three apples and a cup of China tea.

King George prefers a leisurely three-course luncheon with Queen Elizabeth, and, when there are no guests, with his two daughters, Princess Elizabeth, heir apparent, and Princess Margaret Rose.

Lunch in Chinese Room

Luncheon, as in the days of King George V., is served in the Chinese room on the first floor, the walls of which are hung with scarlet silk and ornamented with dragons in vividly contrasting lacquer.

The king conducts most of his daily business and receives important personages in his audience chamber, a spacious, well illuminated room, also on the first floor, ornamented with Indian trophies. This room was used by his father for the same purpose.

Downstairs the room in which the Duke of Windsor worked has reverted to a waiting room and the regency room further along the main corridor, also used by the Duke of Windsor as a business room is now used by the king as an "emergency" reception room.

King George and Queen Elizabeth still have to take a lift from their bedrooms to their private bathrooms on the next floor, as few structural alterations have been made at the palace.

Dog Suffers Few Bad Effects In 184-foot Drop

SILVER CREEK FALLS, Ore.—Snuffy, 20 pound part Boston bull, part fox terrier and part just plain dog, is a dog-gone lucky pup.

While cavorting with a group of CCC enrollees from Camp Silver Creek Snuffy was chasing a rabbit. One of the youths whistled for the dog and he started to answer the call.

Snuffy failed to look before he leaped however and the next moment plunged over the Silver Creek falls to drop on the rocks 18 feet below missing the deep blue pool of water by 10 feet.

France To Begin Building Of U. S. Airplane Motors

(International News Service)

PARIS, July 1.—France is shortly to commence construction of American airplane motors.

"American motors are the best in the world and we must have them" Minister for Aviation Guy LaChambre decided recently.

French military aviation has been handicapped for years by faulty engines in the opinion of leading technicians here who consider that with the American engines the average speed and reliability of the pursuit and bombing planes will be increased considerably.

Twin Wasp Engines

Complete plans for the construction of the Pratt and Whitney Twin Wasp are expected in Paris within a few days and work on these engines should be underway within two months it is estimated.

Ministry of Air officials believe that as soon as this engine is being manufactured the Twin Hornet motor will then be started under similar conditions.

Although the French government has purchased the French patents on these engines no price has been mentioned.

Engineers believe that manufacture of these American motors here will speed up French engine construction and will also force French manufacturers to evolve a better, stronger and more reliable type of motor.

Weird Student Contraption Is Ruled An Auto

(International News Service)

ITHACA, N. Y.—City Judge Harold E. Simpson decided today that four wheels, an engine and a gas tank was an automobile.

Such a contraption was piloted by Earl B. Travis, of Birmingham, Alabama, a Cornell student, when he was arrested by Patrolman Daniel B. Flynn. Travis explained he was experimenting with the "car" owned by another student, at the time he was trying it out on one of Ithaca's hills.

Judge Simpson assessed him $5 for driving without a driver and $5 more for driving without license plates.

Eight Bouts On Tonight's Card

New Castle And Ellwood Boys Meet West Virginians, Ohioans

FIRST BOUT TO START AT 8:30 P. M.

Everything is in readiness for the punch lover who wends his way to the Grove Street playground where the Jefferson A. C. will present an amateur fistic calendar containing eight bouts at 8:30 p. m. tonight. Included among those who will display their ability to give and take are Mickey Medwick, Mickie Rubin, and Tony Adamo, of this city. The last bout will find Harold Blank of Youngstown opposed to Mike Kaluger, of Follansbee.

The inaugural of the out-door amateur boxing season occurred one week ago tonight and the playground was jammed. Everything went off systematically and the fans witnessed action in all of the bouts. Several knockouts were unfurled and in one bout Johnny Morinelli of Youngstown, scored an upset when he stopped Jimmy Scutelli a good 112 pounder from Oil City.

There should be a repetition of last Friday night's action tonight because the fighters are said to be, for the most part, punchers, caring little for science, unless it is Blank who is regarded as one of Ohio's best 145 pounders and Earl Donaldson who will take on Nick Retardo of Ellwood City. A year or so ago Donaldson was Ohio's 126 pound champion.

Here Are Opponents

The bouts for tonight are as follows:

Harold Blank of Youngstown vs Mike Kaluger, of Follansbee, W. Va. 145.

Eddie Oleski, of Follansbee, W. Va. vs. Johnny Morinelli, Youngstown, 112.

Joe Gainer, Bethany college, vs. Steve Morgan, Youngstown, 160.

Mickie Medwick, New Castle, vs. Lake Smith, Follansbee, heavyweights.

Frankie Karik, Youngstown vs. Benny Bartle, Ellwood City, 155.

Tony Adamo, New Castle, vs. Jimmy Stewart, Youngstown, 155.

Mickie Rubin, New Castle vs. Shelton Bell, Youngstown, light-heavyweights.

Nick Retardo of Ellwood City vs. Earl Donaldson, Youngstown, 135 pounds.

The foregoing schedule is about as fair an amateur card as could be secured without going out of this district and the fighters in this vicinity are the boys the fans like to see. After the list has been gone through, which will take some weeks the winners will be matched against some of the "bigger guns" in the ranks of Pistania.

The boxing production is governed by the State Athletic commission and the Amateur Athletic union.

Draw Schedule For County Loop

The managers and officials of the Lawrence County league recently held a harmonious session with Alec Samuels presiding and at the present time the schedule committee is hard at work on the second half program of games.

The new schedule will be announced early next week, it was reported.

Joe Louis To Take Rest, Not To Fight Baer

Talks Mike Jacobs Into Cancelling Plans For Championship Fight This Fall

ALSO CANCELS TRIP TO EUROPE

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, July 1.—World's Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis will not fight Max Baer in September, nor will he defend his title against anybody else again this year.

The champion will rest on his laurels and confine his boxing to a few exhibition bouts, it was clear today.

Responsible for this disclosure is Julian Black Louis' co-manager, who also revealed the fighter has cancelled his passage aboard a liner for Europe next Wednesday.

In Need Of Rest

The reason for the change in plans, said Black, is that Louis feels he needs a rest. He successfully defended his title the fourth time in 12 months on June 22 when he swarmed over Max Schmeling at the Yankee Stadium.

Black said he had consulted Mike Jacobs, who also is interested in the promotional side of Louis' activities, and that Jacobs saw it the same way.

Jacobs, said Black, approved plans to keep Joe out of a title bout until next spring at the earliest.

The switch in plans does not affect Baer's standing as the logical man to meet Louis provided Baer can stay perpendicular in any fights he undertakes between now and 1939.

Mungo Allows Bees One Hit

Rabbit Warstler Gets Hit That Spoils Perfect Game, Indians Win Again

PIRATES SUBDUE CINCINNATI REDS

By ANTHONY J. PUGLIESE
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, July 1.—Pitching major baseball authorities assert, is at last showing per cent of a pre-war major league ball club.

A glance about the major loops shows that pitching has come to speak the major. Sandwiched in between days of nearly home run after home run days of scoreless innings in both leagues.

Such a day was yesterday, with Van Lingle Mungo, Brooklyn mainstayer, leading the mound parade with a one hit shutout of the Boston Bees.

Mungo In Form

In addition, in the seven games played, there was a three-hitter, two four-hitters, a six-hitter and a seven-hits performance, all adding up to pitching par excellence.

Mungo had things all his own way as he beat the Bees 5 to 0 by holding the Bostonians to a lone blow, a double by Rabbit Warstler—to chalk up his third win of the year. Not a Bee reached third as Mungo fanned six and walked eight.

Ol' Blarney Lanier, the Cincinnati Reds' three safeties as the Pittsburgh Pirates took the odd contest of a three game series 3 to 1. Two of the three hits came in the ninth inning. The victory put the Buccaneers in second place in the league standings.

Yanks Win Again

The New York Yankees made it three in a row over the Philadelphia Athletics as Charley Ruffing held the A's to four hits and was aided to a 7 to 1 victory by home runs by Joe DiMaggio—his 16th—and Tommy Henrich.

The other four-hit performance was fashioned by Jack Knott who pitched the Chicago White Sox to an 11 to 1 victory over the lowly St. Louis Browns. The Sox unleashed 11 hits on four Browns hurlers.

Bagby Wins Another

In Boston young Jim Bagby limited the Senators to six hits as the Red Sox pounded out 16 to win, 11 to 1. Bagby won his fifth victory, while Jimmy Foxx, Doc Cramer and Joe Vosmik led the Boston attack with three hits each.

The New York Giants trounced the Philadelphia Phillies 14 to 1 as Cliff Castleman yielded only seven hits to the Phils while the Giants pounded out 19 hits including a home run, two doubles and a single by Hank Leiber, and two doubles and three singles by Sam Leslie.

Indians On Top

The Cleveland Indians kept pace with the challenging Yankees as with a 13 to 9 decision from the Detroit Tigers, despite Hank Greenberg's 22nd homer and one by Billy Rogell, Johnny Allen, who relieved Red Ruffing in the Yankee Park fracas in the ninth to give himself his 11th win.

The Cubs and Cardinals were rained out in Chicago.

Mungo May Quit For Year, Give His Arm Rest

Mungo Complains Of Pain In Arm, May Quit For Year To Give It Rest

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, July 1.—Van Lingle Mungo, who yesterday pitched a one-hit game against the Boston Bees, today was a dour and sullen victor, weary of the big towns and homesick for his home in the Carolina hills.

"This may be my last year in baseball," the mystery man of the mound told me in an exclusive interview. "My arm hurt yesterday. It ached from the first inning 'til the last. Every time I threw a curve ball I thought it would drop off.

"I'll take my regular turn, I suppose, but this season I'll go the best I can, but if I don't get any better by the end of the season, I ain't coming back. I'm going to quit baseball."

Asked if he were going to abandon the big show for keeps, Mungo replied:

"Right now I don't know. But I can't pitch with this pain. But one thing I'm sure of, I'm going to take next season off if my arm isn't any better by the end of this one. A whole year would rest it and make it good. If it doesn't get any better after a year's rest I'll quit for good."

Vocational Guidance Explained To Rotary

Richard Hawke, Head Of School Department, Is Speaker Before Club

ELLWOOD CITY, July 1.—Richard Hawke, head of vocational guidance and manual training in the local schools, was the speaker at the regular meeting of the Rotary club last evening in the First Presbyterian church.

Edward Mackasek introduced the speaker, a former member of the local club, who has upon a number of occasions spoken very successfully to the club. Mr. Hawke gave, in his inimitable manner, an interesting and informing address upon the history and present status of vocational training in the public schools.

Calling attention to the disappearance of skilled craftsmen from the community, the blacksmith, cabinet maker, leather worker and others, he asked a number of the Rotarians present if they had any apprentices in their employ. The answer was in the negative. This need together with the inability of the classical course to meet the needs of many students led, some 20 years ago, to the starting of vocational training in the schools, with government appropriations for the same. Work was given in three general fields agricultural, trades and home economics. In 21 years there has been a million and a half students in these courses, at a cost of some $34,000,000, in the entire 48 states. Mr. Hawke said this work was not supplying the need for skilled workmen valuable though it was, also that it was not as effective as regular apprenticeship in industry or trades. The work is growing both in extent and in character of work.

Vice President Harold Burns had charge of the meeting in the absence of President H. W. Smith, who had not yet returned from attending the international convention of Rotary in San Francisco. Secretary Monroe announced that July 14 would be Rotary Day at Chautauqua and that Past President Maurice Du Perre, Paris, will be the speaker. ## Market Advance Resumed Today

After Quiet And Mixed Opening Utilities Lead In Market Rise Today

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service Financial Writer

NEW YORK, July 1.—The stock market's advance was resumed today, following yesterday's wild session in which prices sold off after a spectacular upswing in the first hour.

After a quiet and mixed opening, utilities led a vigorous rally with the ticker falling 2 minutes behind. Gains ran from 1 to almost 3 points for a time, but light profit-taking again appeared in the second hour and best prices were shaded. Trading also slowed to the initial pace.

Close behind the utilities on the early advance were the steels, motors, electrical equipments, rubbers and farm implements.

A few new 1938 peaks were chalked in the strong power group, including Consolidated Edison and North American, each of which gained well over a point. Western Union in the communications also worked into new high ground on an advance of better than a point.

B. And O. Railroad Is 110 Years Old

On the Fourth of July, 110 years ago, two important transportation projects were begun. President John Quincy Adams evidently considered the beginning of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal the greater event, since he lent the dignity of his own presence to it, and laid its cornerstone. But another patriot proved to be the truer prophet, for Charles Carroll of Carrollton (figure in white, left) then the last surviving signer of the Declaration of Independence, on the same day said, as he was digging the sod for the First Stone of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad: "I consider this among the most important acts of my life, second only to my signing the Declaration of Independence, if even it be second to that."

Japanese Exports Are Hard Hit By World Boycott

(International News Service)

GENEVA—Japanese goods have been boycotted throughout the world and the United States is one of the principle boycotting countries.

This is shown in figures just made public here by the Rassemblement Universal institution.

According to statistics Japanese exports to the United States have declined continually being twenty-eight per cent less in December, 1937; 25 per cent less in January and 52 per cent less in February.

Japanese exports in general were eighteen per cent less in February 1938 and in 1937.

Although no figures are given for Asian import of Japanese goods it is reported that they have deceased considerably despite native preference for Japanese goods because of their low price.

Ohio 'Traffic Cop' Attends College On Side

(International News Service)

KENIA, O.—Charles P. Wyndham is believed to be the only village "traffic cop" in the country who is also a college student.

Wyndham divides his time between studying at Antioch where he is a cooperative student, and enforcing traffic laws in Yellow Springs, where the college is located.

The Antioch student first became interested in becoming a traffic officer, while acting as chairman of the college student traffic committee, which regulates the ownership and operation of automobiles on the campus. Wyndham has made five arrests since he assumed office on April 18.

Swiss Fear Inclusion In Nazi Pan-German Program

(International News Service)

GENEVA, July 1.—Germany is preparing to include Switzerland in its pan-German program, which is said to call for the annexation of Austria.

It is the fear of Swiss politicians here who consider that Hitler's pan-German aspect Switzerland's democratic integrity and recent Nazi propaganda claims the greater part of the country is to be included in Greater Germany, are contradictory and threaten peace.

Map Reveals Status

German maps which were distributed throughout Switzerland showed "Greater Germany marked in deep red." This included the whole of Switzerland with the exception of a narrow strip on the French frontier and Tessin.

On this map the present German-Swiss frontier on the Rhine is described as "limit of separation inside the territory of the German people."

"This would mean the end of Switzerland," the Gazette de Lausanne editorially declared, demanding that the Swiss government protest the distribution of such maps and amplify their intentions towards Switzerland.

Survey Reveals That 80 Percent Of All Women Wear Stocking Size 9½

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 1.—Men who brave the stocking counters to buy chiffon hosiery for their girl friends should pick size 9. If they don't know the correct size according to the Research Bureau for Retail Training, University of Pittsburgh, because that's the size that fits about 80 per cent of all women.

"If you will insist on gallantly presenting your girl of the moment with size 8 stockings, the smallest size sold, your Cinderella will probably be back to the hosiery counter to exchange your gift for a healthy size 9½ or 10," one of the men students in the retail bureau declared.

In the south, however, women have daintier smaller feet than their more active northern sisters, according to the bureau.

Suggest Informative Labels.

Informative labels on silk stockings that tell how and when the stockings should be worn would make life and shopping easier for women budgeteers, the co-eds in the course maintain.

Students in the retailing course are making a careful study of silk hosiery this semester, from cocoon to counter.

"We haven't actually heard the silkworm crunching on the mulberry leaves" admitted one aspiring hosiery expert, "but we may get to that yet."

Gauges, threads, construction are all a part of the retail students new hosiery vocabulary, but they are still a mystery to most women who are skimping on their lunches to buy a pair of sheer chiffons, says the bureau.

Knowledge Put to Work

The students are making prompt and practical application of their classroom work.

"I've developed a wary eye for seams, welts, constructions and thread numbers of the stockings I'm buying this season," emphasized a member of the class.

"But a semester of study and research still won't solve the really important question of why my stockings always spring into runners just when I have an important date," she concluded sadly.
